Heat 'burns' farmers

By DIETER KRIEG

LANCASTER – The heat wave, which weathermen say is to end now, took its toll on just about all aspects of agriculture. Hardest hit were poultry and swine producers where animal survival was heavily dependent on artificially created environments. By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Berks County Reporter

LEESPORT, Pa. - Work has been underway for the first phase of Berks County's proposed 4-H Center. When completed, the 4-H Center will consist of two horse rings, an exhibit or multi-purpose building housing an auditorium, conference room, rest rooms, and food preparation facilities, and a livestock building which will be a pole barn with a show ring under roof.

The extravagant complex will be built on a 10-acre site, rented from the County on a 99 year lease for one dollar per year, according to Mae Bleiler, assistant home economist and 4-H coordinator. This land lies behind the present Agricultural Building. The grounds will

LIFE on the farm

By DIETER KRIEG

Air is liquified by extremely cold temperatures, but the hot and humid conditions of recent weeks could make a person think that the heat of the sun melts our atmosphere.

Unless a breeze was going, the air enveloping us felt as though it was thick enough to cut with a knife, and sticky enough to use as glue. One of the few cool places on the farm was the dairy barn, and that held true only when the cows were outside. As soon as they came in, the entire barn would feel like a tropical jungle.

With their ears and heads often drooping, our cows walked into the barn to take their stalls, and press their noses into drinking bowls Many of them were soaked with sweat -- which made milking them a bit unpleasant, but worse yet were those which had taken a mud bath.

We had a few culprits in our herd from time to time which had a habit of rolling in the mud on hot days and we dreaded to see them coming. Covered with a filthy, wet paste from head to tail, these sloppy cows tried a man's patience and took up his time. At every afternoon milking on a hot day it became common practice to drag the water hose into the barn and give showers to these dirty animals.

And the litter alleys were something else too during hot weather. It took twice as much scraping and barn snow to keep them looking half decent. All these annoyances and extra work came about as a result of the heat wave. It didn't stop there, either.

We ended up fencing in one muddy area after another, but as every dairyman knows, cows gathering under shade trees can make their own new mud hole rather quickly. So the battle of wits and patience continued. Usually the surest way of solving the problem would be to sell the individuals which made the biggest pigs of themselves.

Down in the barn, cows' tails switched back and forth to stir up a little breeze and scare flies. Occasionally my head would get in the way. Now, a slap in the face with either a dry or wet tail is bad enough, but a direct hit in the eye is much worse. Aside from being painful, it can make the victim forget that bovines are supposed to be treated like ladies.

Although I personally thrive on hot weather, the woes of the season continue on the farm. Cows lose their appetite and milk production drops in both volume and butterfat content. That spells less income for the month, despite possibly increased costs. Even if nothing else -- such as feeds and other supplies increased in price -- the dairyman can count on using more electricity to pump water, run fans and cool milk. A visit or two from the veterinarian might have been necessary too.

No matter how hot and sweaty we got while working in the barn with our dairy herd, we could always be sure of one thing: it was even more uncomfortable for the animals than it was for us. Hot, humid temperatures are hard on farmers who have to work in it day in and day out, and even harder on his animals. What's more the hot sun on the farm can melt profits.

NO MORE MANNA OR MOSES

Lesson for July 24, 1977

Background Scripture:
Joshua 3 through 6; 14:1-5.
Devotional Reading:
Joshua 3:9-17

During the forty years in the wilderness there were two enduring realities that sustained the people of Israel: Moses, their leader, and manna, the food with which God fed them daily. Without either of these gifts from God they could not have made it.

We can imagine, therefore, the feelings of apprehension they must have had, them, as they prepared to leave the wilderness and enter the Promised Land. First of all, they would do so without the great Moses. Their leader died before they could cross over into Canaan. He could see the Promised Land, but it was not his lot to enter it. The long delay occasioned by the "evil report" of Moses' spies had robbed him of that privilege.

What mean these stones?

So, as they prepared to cross into the Promised Land they must have wondered whether their new leadership, Joshua, could lead them as Moses had.

A second factor that certainly troubled them was the realization that when they crossed the Jordan into Canaan, they would no longer be fed by manna, as they had been in the desert, but from henceforth they would be eating whatever the Promised Land provided. In a sense, this should have been an attractive prospect, but we can imagine that some people felt very insecure without the promise of the daily manna which had been theirs and their fathers' sustenance ever since leaving Egypt.

Without Moses and without manna, could they do it?

While crossing the Jordan River, Joshua, their new leader, had them set up a pillar of stones, saying, "when your children ask in time to come, 'What do those stones mean to you?' Then you shall tell them that the waters of Jordan were cut off before the ark of the covenant...So these stones shall be to the people of Israel a memorial for ever" (4:6,7) And what these stones would mean from henceforth was that the people of Israel crossed over from the wilderness into the Promised Land without Moses and without manna, but with the ark of the covenant...and that meant with the presence of the Lord.

The Lord is with you

Important as had been the leadership of Moses, vital as had been the daily nourishment of manna, it was neither of these that brought the people of Israel through he wilderness; it was the presence of the Lord! So they could enter the Promised Land with new leadership and they could give up their assurance of daily manna, but so long as the Lord was with them, it would not matter.

This ought to be an important lesson to all of us. As they prepared to claim the Promised Land, the people of Israel did not forget the past - in fact the Book of Joshua tells us "they kept the passover" (5:10) - but they were not afraid of the changes that lay before them. So too we have memorial "stones" to which we can point as a remembrance of God's providence in the past, but we can also accept the changes which time and God demand and move out of our own wilderness to whatever destination God is calling us.

TO PREPARE FOR AUGUST SEEDINGS...

Alfalfa growers in this part of the country can establish a new stand of alfalfa by making the seeding during late July or early August; by seeding at this time of the year, the plants get well started before freezing weather arrives. The soil should be tested for lime and fertilizer needs. A good firm seedbed is needed that has been worked several times over a period of several weeks in order to kill weeds. Straight seedings of alfalfa are quite common although some growers prefer timothy or a grass seeded with the alfalfa. The band seeding method is one of the very best ways to make this new seeding. Alfalfa is one of our most important forage crops; most fields will need re-seeding after 3 to 5 years. It is best not to grow alfalfa in the same field for a long period of years; the growing of corn or a small grain between each of the 3 to 5 years of alfalfa is suggested.

TO APPLY CONSERVATION METHODS

Some of the heavy rains recently reflect the need of more soil erosion practices in order to keep the soil and the water on the farm. The establishing of contour strips or diversion terraces is a part of a good conservation program; all land owners to be are making an effort at this time to stop both soil and water losses from their land. The fall of the year is a good time to begin these practices, as the winter grain crops are seeded. Farmers who have a problem with ditches and erosion of their soil, are urged to give some attention to correcting the problem at this time.

TO BEWARE OF LIGHTNING

Extreme high temperatures often bring severe thunder and lightning storms; we have had some in recent weeks and no doubt there will be others to come. Parents are urged to warn their youngsters of the danger of getting under a tree or swimming in a pond or creek before and during a storm. Safety in a building or in a truck or automobile should be the objective as the storm approaches, as well as during the storm. Stay away from electric fences and farm equipment that is out in the open. Buildings with lightning rods should be checked to be sure the rods are grounded in moist soil, and the system free of obstacles that would prevent the cable from taking the charge into the ground. Electrical storms are dangerous and safety measures should be adopted.

TO ORDER FALL SEED SUPPLIES...

Its not too early to be placing your order for winter barley and winter wheat needs. In many cases the desired variety may not be available if left to the last minute. Certified seeds are suggested in order to get quality seeds with performance testing in the background. The planting of seeds of unknown purity and germination is taking a chance of a crop failure along with introducing weeds and disease infection. The seeding times for these grains starts about the middle of September for winter oats, late September to early October for winter barley, and the month of October for winter wheat. Additional information is available in the 1977 Agronomy Guide available at any Extension Office in the state.

Vo-ag program in transition in Lanc. Co. school district

Jesse Erway

By JOANNE SPAHR

MANHEIM, Pa.—If agreement is reached, beginning this Monday, the Manheim Central school district will again have a vocational agriculture program. At that time Jesse Erway, vocational agruculture teacher with the district for 13-½ years, will go back to work as a supervisor of the Summer agriculture program, if he agrees to a supplemental Summer contract passed by the school board on July 21.

Technically, for about three weeks, beginning on July 1, the program was dead in the school district because of a reduction of 55 days in the contract of Erway, 312 Fairview Drive, Lititz. This reduction in contract and subsequent salary for Erway was a measure by the school baord to cut rising school costs by eliminating all Summer programs. According to school superintendent David McKalips, the Summer vocational agriculture course was only one of four such programs curtailed.

However, according to standards established by the vocational department of the Pennsylvania Department of Education, 185 working days is not ample time for the vo ag teacher to provide a quality education for a program such as is run at Manheim Central. That program consists of production ag, ag mechanics, and adult education classes.

During a five hour hearing held on July 19 in the high school auditorium, James Fink, senior program specialist in agriculture education for the Pennsylvania Department of Education, testified that for Manheim Central's program, 230 days is the standard and 220 days the minimum amount one vocational agriculture teacher is required to be on the job. He also affirmed that if the school district did not comply with the specifications set down, he would not approve a vocational agriculture program for the school district.

The ramifications of such a move would have been widespread. For the vo-ag students, it would have signaled the end of FFA and the beginning of an academic agriculture class without the 'hands on' program it now has. The move would have also affected the Young Farmer group at the school. These two groups depend heavily on state vocational reimbursement monies to operate, and without an approved program, those reimbursements would end. For the all day, or in-school ag student, the reimbursements comes to $35 per student plus 80 per cent of their traveling expenses. This amount is added onto state education money which subsidizes the school district at the rate of 22 students per teaching unit, or reimburses the school district every time a teacher has 22 students on his work load.

For the Young Farmers, the reimbursement money comes to $5.20 per teacher per hour, plus 80 per cent of the Young Farmer organization's traveling time. Three dollars and 20 cents of the $5.20 sum is state vocational money and $2 is federal money.

After lengthy discussion at Tuesday's hearing, clarification was reached to the fact that Erway is required to work 220 hours, minimum, for the school district to receive these reimbursements.

With this point clarified, when the school board met in regular session on July 21. they voted to award Erway a supplemental contract as supervisor of the Summer agriculture program. This contract will run from July 25 to August 26, bringing the program to 220 days this year, which will assure reimbursement as well as the continuance of the vocational agriculture course for the year.

In a recommendation passed by the board members, it was stated that "the board intends to continue a viable vocational agriculture program including Summer programs, and if possible, an FFA chapter, as long as sufficient enrollment and demand continue. Therefore, the board urges that they work with the Pennsylvania Department of Education to continue the program at a reduced cost to the taxpayer in the district, if possible."

According to Dr. Richard Hoffman, president of the school board, the district will now seek viable alternatives to keeping the vocational program with less than 240 days on the vo ag teachers' contracts.

Chester County's 4-H'ers rated in dress revue

By JOANNE SPAHR

PARKESBURG, Pa. - Fifty-nine young seamstresses representing 12 4-H sewing clubs from Chester County gathered at the Pakesburg Baptist Church on July 15 for an evaluation of their Summer projects and with the hope that they might be one of nine girls chosen to go onto regional dress revue competition at the Lehigh Valley Mall in Allentown on July 22.

Speaking to the audience prior to the naming of the nine young women chosen to go onto further competition, Valerie J. Peoples, Chester County Extension home economist, stressed the fact that "These girls don't wake up in the morning with the knowledge of how to sew a garment properly," and that dedication of members, leaders, and parents, combined, helped the 4-H'ers in their accomplishments.

She also reminded those present that all girls taking part in the review were winners, although only six senior 4-H members and three junior members could go on to attend regional competition.

The six seniors chosen were: Wendy Davis, Downingtown R1; Beverly Hershey, Cochranville R1; Dawn Krapf, Downingtown R1; Nadine Prange, Cochranville R1; Susan Windle, Coatesville R3; and JoAnn Wyatt, West Grove.

Miss Davis's outfit was a flowered cotton sundress with a flared skirt stitched to a fitted bodice. It featured a back button closing, patched pockets, and a ruffled bottom and shoulder straps in matching material. Miss Davis, who is 16 years old, is a member of the East Brandywine 4-H club.

Beverly Hershey, last year's regional winner, created a light blue polyester cotton jumpsuit featuring a zipper front closing, patched pockets, and top stitching. She also sewed a multi-color floral blouse with front gathers at the shoulder seams, and long sleeves. Miss Hershey, age 18, is a member of the Glen-Hi 4-H Club.

Dawn Krapf, a 17-year-old member of the East Brandywine 4-H club, also created a jumpsuit of blue cotton. Her ensemble included a front zipper, elastic waitline, as well as a collar and pockets with white trim. A contrasting red print tie set off her suit.

A two-piece outfit consisting of a semi-fitted blouse and a gathered skirt in a brown multi-colored cotton polyester earned Nadine Prange the right to attend regional competition. The 18-year-old member of the Oxford 4-H Home Ec Club created a blouse gathered at the front into a shaped yoke and a round neckline. Miss Prange's skirt featured a three-tiered effect with lace trim.

Susan Windle, a 15-year-old from the Highlanders 4-H Club, made a two piece green plaid wool blend outfit featuring a skirt and a lined vest with princess seaming and a V neckline. Miss Windle also made covered buttons to match the outfit. To finish the ensemble, she wore a cream colored, long-sleeved blouse with a tie front.

A dark green chiffon and gabardine gown accented with chiffon long sleeves and gabardine cuffs earned JoAnn Wyatt the status of competing in regionals. The Avondale 4-H'er's gown featured a low rounded neckline.

Senior winners from the Chester County dress revue were: (left to right) JoAnn Wyatt, Avondale 4-H; Susan Windle, Highlanders 4-H; Dawn Kraft, East Brandywine 4-H; Wendy Davis, East Brandywine 4-H; Beverly Hershey, Glen-Hi 4-H; and Nadine Prange, Oxford 4-H.

Also attending the regional competition with the senior members, but acting only in the capacity of hostesses were three junior 4-H members. These girls were Sally Arters, Downingtown, a member of the East Brandywine 4-H club; Linda Mauger, Downingtown, also of the East Brandywine Club; and Lynda Thompson, of Kennett Square, from the London Grove 4-H Club. Betsy Wollaston of Maple Lawn Farm, Toughkenamon, was chosen as junior alternate.

Dress review criteria judged the girls on total appearance, from poise to the way the outfit was fit to their body build and complexion.

Buffet service, like the cafeteria service, is informal. The food is set out on a table or buffet and the customers pick up what they want or tell an attendant and the attendant serves them. Sometimes there is a broiler located to the rear of the buffet to prepare short orders.

Many fast food chains have added a salad bar to their menu in an effort to meet nutritional requirements, but most salads are not nutritionally complete. A meal consisting of hamburger, salad and soft drink once again misses the two vital vitamins A and C and calcium and vitamins found in milk.

MEDICINE AND MANAGEMENT

By CARL TROOP, VMD

Taming the heat wave

Man and beast alike are presently engaged in a battle with the weather conditions which have produced one of the most extreme heat waves in many years. Since any successful attempt in altering the weather does not look fruitful at the present time, attention has been turned to ways of making the heat a little less unbearable. I will try to make my contribution towards changing the weather by providing a column on heat and its related problems, then we will surely have a cool wave which will last the rest of the Summer.

Heat stroke is a disorder of the heat regulating mechanism which is a result of environmental high temperatures. Sunstroke is an acute form of heat stroke characterized by sudden onset, high temperature, and high mortality. Heat exhaustion is a mild form of heat stroke and is characterized by a gradual onset, depression, normal temperature, and low mortality.

To understand the causes of heat stroke it is necessary to know in a general way, how heat is produced and removed in the animals body. Body temperature is increased by many factors, but most importantly by muscular activity, disease, and adverse environmental conditions. Heat is lost primarily by conduction to the body surface and radiation into the surrounding air, and water vaporization from the body surface. Any increase of the factors that produce body heat, or interference of the factors that remove body heat may result in heatstroke.

In general, predisposing environmental factors of heatstroke are high temperature, (the heat itself) high humidity, (the air around the animal is already saturated with water vapor and evaporation from the body surface is minimal) and inadequate ventilation (once heat is radiated from the body surface it must be moved away or the air around the animal will soon become as warm as the animal itself and no more heat will be lost). Exposure to direct rays of the sun may be a contributing factor but not necessarily so.

All domestic animals are susceptible to heatstroke, and the incidence is greatest during a prolonged heat wave. In acute heatstroke the animal is usually dull and depressed with rapid breathing. Weakness develops very rapidly until the animal collapses after which it is usually unable to rise. Temperature can range from 105 degrees to 115 degrees. Early treatment may lead to recovery, however circumstances often make effective treatment impossible and the mortality rate is high. Heatstroke complicated with any other problem, (milk fever, pneumonia, etc.) makes the situation even less hopeful.

Hogs are particularly predisposed to heatstroke. Lung capacity is small on a per pound basis, and most of the popular lard type hogs are covered by a thick layer of fat which interferes with heat loss from the body surface. In fact, any animal which is overly fat will have more problems staying cool than a lean one.

In horses the problem is usually caused by overexertion (the production of additional body heat by muscular activity) in a hot humid atmosphere, or from confinement in a hot, poorly ventilated area after a period of work. Inadequate water intake can also be a contributing factor. In most cases sweating ceases and the skin becomes dry. This is an important sign of a developing problem. If the horse is again forced to work after the initial signs develop, intense labored breathing, convulsions, collapse, and coma frequently occur.

Cattle are most susceptible to heatstroke and heat related problems during periods of stress. Calving time and the first couple days after calving are the most vulnerable. Milk fever provides added problems as there is an inability of the cow to adequately regulate her own body temperature. Cattle with chronic respiratory problems are going to be the first adversely affected by the heat.

Treatment for heatstroke is very simple and fundamental. Prompt reduction of body temperature is essential. The animal should be constantly bathed or sprayed with cool water. Abundant amounts can be used on the floor surrounding the affected animal. In severe cases ice packs can be used on the head in an attempt to prevent lethal damage to the brain. This should be continued until the temperature drops to 103-104 degrees. The

Region sends four to state 4-H dress revue

By JOANNE SPAHR

CAMP HILL, Pa. - Seven out of 80 young women participating in the Capital Regional 4-H dress revue emerged victorious on July 21 when they were awarded gold ribbons, the highest honor attainable at the fashion competition. Four of the seven will now have the change to participate in the state dress revue on August 2 at Eisenhower Auditorium on the Penn State University campus.

Only seniors and allowed to go onto state competition. Those four girls were: Carol Ebersole, Lititz R2; Charla Janney, Brodbecks R1; Laurel Ort, Mechanicsburg; and Sue Risser, Dillsburg.

Miss Ebersole's tailored suit in wine with a pink pin stripe consisted of a matching jacket, vest, and skirt. She also created a coordinating pink polyester knit blouse with a soft bow at the neckline for accent.

A wool ensemble which included a plaid rust-colored double faced reversible coat and a matching reversible vest and skirt earned Charla Janney the right to present the Capital Region at state competition. Completing her outfit was a solid rust-colored qiana blouse featuring a soft bow at the neckline.

Laurel Ort created several coordinating outfits in baby blue. Among her ensemble was a polyester raincoat, an A-line skirt with a front kick pleat, a polyester crepe silk print blouse utilizing maize as an accenting color, solid knit pants, and a coordinating striped knit jacket.

Sue Risser earned her gold ribbon with a cotton suede rust-colored coat featuring a manilla lining and raglan sleeves. Accenting the garment were wooden buttons.

Since only seniors were allowed to participate in state dress revue, the gold ribbon status was the highest achievement which junior seamstresses could attain.

The three top junior sewers were Megan Connor, Lebanon; Kathy Ewing, York; and Judy Weaver, Lancaster.

Runners up in the senior division were: Amy Balsbaugh, Lebanon Co.; Wendy Bowman, Lebanon Co.; Susan Howell, Lancaster Co.; Kay Swartz, York Co.; Ellyn Tannenbaum, Adams; and Marianne Villa, Dauphin Co.

Garden Spot Angus tops at Garden State show

By DIETER KRIEG

NEWTON, N.J. - Fred Frey, a well-known southern Lancaster County cattleman, knows a good beef animal when he sees one. At the New Jersey Angus Field Day held here last Saturday, he scored a couple of indirect victories. They were indirect in the sense that he owned none of the animals, but he was instrumental in encouraging a couple of young showmen to enter the animals. On two counts it meant Garden Spot Angus cattle beating the best in the Garden State.

Owner of Twin Oak Farms, south of Quarryville, Frey had a couple of his nephews enter their show animals. One of them came away with the trophy for the grand champion female. The show, which was open to competitors from the Keystone State, was judged by Conrad Grove of Deaveraux-Soleil Farms, Downingtown.

The grand champion female was shown by Ernie Frey, 13, who raised the heifer out of one of his own cows. He has plans for taking the 14-month old animal to the Farm Show in January, with in-between appearances at a few other fairs and shows.

Two other Freys also came back with awards. Fritz, 10, was named champion fitter of the show, and Billy, 11, came up with a third-place steer in a class of 12 mediumweights.

Fred Frey's other big indirect victory came when the grand champion steer was chosen. According to Ron Zimmerman of Ephrata, owner of the 1250-pound steer, Frey saw his animal several weeks ago when the Red Rose Beef and Sheep Club was meeting at his home. Very much interest in 4-H Club work, Frey encouraged Zimmerman to take the steer to the New Jersey show. The steer won and was described as the thickest, meatiest steer of the show.

Zimmerman, a 1977 graduate of Ephrata High School, purchased his champion steer last Fall at the Eastern National Livestock Show in Timonium, Md. Born and raised in West Virginia, the blue-ribbon steer weighed 600 pounds when Zimmerman purchased it. He's been feeding the animal an average of 10 pounds of silage and eight pounds of grain per day, along with giving him daily access to a pasture.

Zimmerman's steer was born in January of 1976, and the New Jersey show was the first the animal has been in since coming out of the Timonium feeder calf ring last November. Zimmerman hopes he has a winning streak started with his purebred Black Angus and has plans for entering a couple of Lancaster County fairs this Fall. His goal is to show the steer at the Keystone Exposition, where it will likely be sold afterwards. He has no plans to take the champion to the Farm Show, although he's already grooming a Limousine-Angus crossbred for that event.

A showman since the age of 10, Zimmerman has had two champions, one reserve champ, and a lot of firsts at the Ephrata Fair. "The most

There's no 'horsing around

By KENDACE BORRY

LANCASTER, Pa. - How do about 150 horse 4-H members get ready for a county roundup? What special things are done to prepare your horse and yourself to get ready for that big show where you compete against all the other county members to find out just how good a horseman you are? Several 4-H'ers talked this past week telling just what they were doing to get ready.

Lashon Bussell, Manheim, a 16-year old member of the Boots and Saddles 4-H Club, spoke on her technique of washing her quarter horse, Jet Miss Bandera. Since 30 per cent of the grooming and showmanship class is judged on grooming, she believes it is very important to have her horse as clean as possible.

Busily scrubbing away at cleaning their tack, Pam, Donna, and Lori Sammons know their equipment will be ready for the show.

The first thing Lashon does is hose her horse down with cool water. She starts at the front legs, works up over the horse's body, and down over the back of the horse, finishing with the tail and back feet.

Next, she starts to shampoo her horse. She uses a commercial horse shampoo on the body, and a baby shampoo on the horse's head. Shampooing is started on the front of one side, and the horse is lathered up completely on that side. The shampoo is applied directly onto the horse, and scrubbed in with a soft scrubbing brush. Some special places to scrub really hard on a horse looking for dirt are the elbows, knees, hocks, and between the front legs.

After the horse is completely scrubbed on one side, Lashon rinses that side off. "If you lather the whole horse at once", she explained, "the soap will dry on the horse which isn't too good. But by doing one side at a time, you can wash the soap and dirt off quickly." A good, thorough rinse is given to the horse to make sure that all the soap and dirt is off the horse. A sweat scraper, a 12 inch long, thin, curved piece of metal, is used to make sure all the soapy water is removed from the horse.

The lathering and rinsing process is repeated on the other side of the horse. Extra attention is paid to the white colored areas of the horse. These, when properly scrubbed, should appear to be pinkish in color. That is a sign they are clean.

The mane and tail need extra care. Although Lashon uses the same shampoo, she scrubs very thoroughly at those places to be sure that she gets beneath the hair to clean out any dandruff or loose dirt. The mane and tail areas are too rinsed with the hose.

A wet sponge is used to wash the head. When the head is thoroughly wet, Lashon applies the baby shampoo onto her sponge and proceeds to wash the face. Being careful around the ears and eyes is stressed because soap can cause irritations in those sensitive spots. Inside the ears, and around the nose and mouth of the horse are wiped with a washcloth. One place to check on the head for hidden dirt is under the chin, a place some judges check, Lashon noted.

Ginny Ruhl, 11, clips her pony's mane, making sure the pony looks trim and neat.

After the head is washed and then thoroughly rinsed, a clean fluffy towel is used to dry it. Then the hooves are washed.

To clean hoof, a wire brush is used the scrub off all the caked dirt. The bottoms of the feet are also "hoof-picked" clean.

Now the horse should be sparkling clean and quickly beginning to dry. Lashon stated that she brushes her horse while it dries, and wraps the legs and tail as soon as they are dry enough to allow her to. This helps keep her horse clean as long as possible. She puts baby oil around the dark areas of the horse's muzzle, eyes, and ears, and adds a coat conditioner to the body of the horse to give it a lustrous shine. Finally a horse sheet is placed over the horse's body for cleanliness.

The whole operation takes about 45 minutes to an hour to perform. The week before the county roundup the horse is washed three times, to make sure he is his absolute cleanest.

Ginny Ruhl, Manheim, an 11 year old member of the Saddle Cinches 4-H, explained the clipping tecniques for her pony, Queenie. "The basic reason I clip my pony," she explained, "is so that he won't look ugly!" Then she went on to tell that by clipping the hair in special places, she could make her pony look a lot more trimmer and neater.

Ginny trims her pony before evey show. She cuts all of its mane off his neck except for a little piece of the forelock between the ears. She cuts the hair out from inside the ears, around the eyes, nose, mouth and under the chin. All the long hair on the legs of her pony she cuts off. The tail of the pony is thinned out so she can make it "pretty".

A scissors and electric clippers are used to do the trimming job. Ginny thought it takes her about half an hour to do her pony and make sure that the trimming is done right.

Every Friday night before a horse show, Donna, Lori, and Pam Sammons of Neffsville, drag all their tack in from the barn, and start cleaning. Before they're done, they've worked on saddles, bridles, halters, blankets, harness, horse sheets, and leg and tail wraps, making sure everything is in top shape for the show the next day.

Donna Sammons explained, "The cleanliness of the rider, horse, and tack is very important. When you enter the ring the first impression you make on the judge is how good and clean you are."

So the three sisters, members of the Boots and Saddles 4-H, saddle soap the saddles, bridles, harness, and halters, (using silver polish on the metal parts) and head for the washing machine with their saddle blankets, horse sheets, leg and tail wraps. In the washer, these items are double rinsed to make sure all the soap is removed, and then hung out on the line to dry. If dried in the drier

Free milk was offered to anyone visiting Charles C. Myers' Black and White Farm last Friday evening when the cattle dealer held his 15th anniversary sale. According to Park Myers, sale manager, 180 half-pints of milk were consumed by an estimated 200 to 250 visitors. It was the first time free milk was offered and the sales staff drank to the occasion several times during the auction. The four milk drinkers above are, left to right, Bill Lefever, driver for Black and White Farms; Henry Kettering, pedigrees; H.D. Matz, buyer of the top selling cow; and Park Myers. The milk producer is Smithland Headliner Penny, who went through the ring at a price of $6000. Thirty-five different buyers purchased a total of 111 registered and grade Holsteins. The sale averaged $656 for 19 grades and $960 for 92 purebreds.

temperature should continue to be taken at short intervals, and treatment renewed if it again starts to rise. It should be allowed to drink cool water freely. Shade and free circulation of air should be provided if at all possible. If the air is stagnant an electric fan can provide the necessary air movement.

Since heatstroke can be such a serious problem all efforts should be directed toward prevention, which consists of maintaining the animals in as comfortable an environment as is practical without subjecting them to any undue stress.

1. - Provide plenty of shade, water, and ventilation, and provide a well balanced diet.

2 - - Move or handle animals only during early morning or evening hours.

3 - Where practical, dispose of animals with chronic respiratory problems.

4 - Maintain animals in medium condition rather than very fat at calving or farrowing time.

5 - Make additions to the herd during cool periods of the day.

6 - Make as few changes in routine as possible.

7 - Avoid overcrowding in areas where ventilation is not adequate.

8 - Keep movement of animals to a minimum. Remember, movement means muscular activity which means additional heat.

You do not have to have an animal with heatstroke to be losing profits because of the heat. An amimal that is even slightly uncomfortable will not be eating as well and will not be producting as well. Everything you can do to make that animal more confortable in hot weather will be greatly appreciated by it and profitable for you.

Save Energy and get FREE HOT WATER... with the revolutionary...

MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

The Mueller Fre-Heater conserves energy and provides "free" hot water by capturing the heat now wasted!

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS.

Rather than using noisy, dust-creating fans with fragile, dirt collecting air-cooled condensers, the refrigerant is routed to a specially designed condenser/heat exchanger and its heat is transferred to the water

A thermostatically controlled valve delivers 145° F water to a storage tank

In addition to the thermostatic valve, a mixing valve is provided to permit "prepping" temperature water.

Thus, the Fre-Heater delivers two temperatures of water — prepping and washing.

Tests indicate the Fre-Heater consumes 10% less power than an air-cooled system . . . and you get Free Hot Water!

ELIMINATES REFRIGERATION SERVICE PROBLEMS!

The most common causes of slow cooling in bulk milk cooling systems are related to the air-cooled condenser

The Fre-Heater eliminates these problems because:

- There is no air-cooled condenser
- The Fre-Heater is installed indoors.
- There are no noisy fans to fail.
- The head pressure is very stable — assuring longer compressor life.
- There are no cold weather starting problems, plus . . . the Fre-Heater conserves energy and produces Free Hot Water!

HOW MUCH WATER CAN BE GENERATED?

There are many variables, so this question cannot be answered directly, however, a rule of thumb is that a Fre-Heater operating on 60° F. well water will produce a volume of 145° F. water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking.

Market report expanded

WASHINGTON, D. C. - A USDA report that gives a national picture of broiler market conditions has been expanded to make it more useful to the broiler industry.

Issued each Tuesday, this "broiler market at a glance" report now contains additional information on the current week's and next week's supply and demand situation. To compile the report, market reporters with USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) contact more than 100 buyers and nearly 150 processors throughout the country each week.

The report contains buyers' and processors' views on such market conditions as current and next-week demand, market "undertone" - that is, the sense of direction in an unsettled market situation - and the current and previous week's average live supply and weight.

Ray Wruk, AMS poultry market news chief, said the report was expanded in response to requests from poultry buyers and sellers.

The information is available from federal-state poultry market news offices located in 17 states. A 5-minute recorded telephone message, updated each Tuesday at 2:30 p.m., may also be heard from the Atlanta, Ga., market news office: Area code (404) 876-1869 or 881-3073.

NEWARK, Del. - Farmers and other members of the agricultural community will have a chance to look at current research and Extension efforts into improving the production of corn and soybeans at the upcoming Field Day at the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences. The event will be held Friday morning, August 5, from 9:30 to 12:00 noon at the University's experimental farm in Newark.

The Field Day will consist of wagon tours of field demonstration plots and will emphasize some of the College's most recent and innovative research efforts on behalf of feed grain production in Delaware.

STEIGER COMFORT HELPED INCREASE PRODUCTION!

Joe Hopewell, Bloomsburg, PA:

"It's very comfortable. It's attractive to the hired men. We use four operators going around the clock and there is always a fresh operator waiting to go. I like the seat. It's especially good for a big person like me. The air conditioning helps keep me from getting tired. It all adds up to getting more man hours out of each individual operator. As far as handling, it's the biggest surprise you ever saw! You think it's going to be awkward and then after you're in it an hour it settles right down and it gets smaller every hour. And no problem at all on the hills."

Lester and Marlin Smith, Lebanon, PA:

"The cab is quiet and you can really see out of it good. If you have the radio you don't even hear the tractor running. The seat sits just like your pickup or car, no vibration at all."

Richard Kreider, Noah Kreider & Sons

"We had no problems turning in our fields - we used the Steiger in all our fields. It's just like anything else, when you learn to operate it you can use it anywhere."

Richard Waybright, Mason Dixon Farms, Gettysburg, PA:

"The cab is very quiet...when you decide to chisel plow at 1:00 in the morning, the cab is so quiet to work in you don't realize how loud the Steiger is. I got so many complaints from the neighbors that I've not done that again!"

Mike Wright

The Steiger is quieter than any other tractor we ever had. It has many features that I like. We are doing the work of two tractors with one Steiger."

Shelhamer, who owns a fruit farm in Columbia County was guest speaker at the event, which was held at the Will-O-Bett Farm. He also used the occasion to bestow the first Century Farm Certificates in Pennsylvania.

The highlight of the evening was the crowing of the dairy princess, Pammy Robbins, by Kent Shelhamer. Alternates were Claire Ellen Young and Jeanette Shultz.

Judges for the evening were: Mrs. Cliff LeVan, Gordon Boyer and George Urbanis. Escorts were: Tammy "Boz" Robbins, Bob Jones and Gary Ent.

Crittenden retired

NEWARK, Del.—Dr. H. William ("Bill") Crittenden, a plant pathologist noted for his successful work as a breeder of disease resistant soybeans, retired June 30 from the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences. During his 30 years with the College, Crittenden was responsible for the release of six soybean varieties, all of them closely tailored to growing conditions on the Delmarva peninsula.

The plant scientist came to Delaware in 1948 from his native Ohio, where he earned his graduate degrees at Ohio State University. According to Dean Donald F. Crossan, who has known the pathologist both as a teacher and a researcher, Crittenden made many significant contributions to the College and to Delaware agriculture during his many years of service.

Through now retired, he doesn't plan to remain out of harness long. He is hoping to resume his research efforts with soybeans once he and his wife relocate, somewhere in the mid-West.

The Mellots have been an ABS Progeny Test Herd for many years. They knew the value of using some good pedigreed young sires in their breeding program. By breeding one-third of their herd to ABS young sires and the rest to good proven sires, they built one of the good herds in Franklin County. This is attested to by the success of their recent dispersal where 61 head averaged $1,352.79. One calf under three months and 12 grades averaged $1,013.84. A total of 74 head averaged $1,293.24; five head topped $2,000; 25 head topped $1,500 and 45 topped $1,000! WOW!! That's over half the herd. CONGRATULATIONS again to the Mellots on a job well done!

Lehigh Co. Lasses hold dress revue

By KENDACE BORRY

NEFFS, Pa. - "Harmony in Fashion" was the theme for the Lehigh County Dress Revue held July 15, at Neffs Union Church, Neffs, Pa. Six senior girls and three juniors were chosen to go on to compete at the regional level.

The senior girls chosen as winners were: Nina Handwerk, 16, from the Lynnport Community 4-H; Denise Yankovich, 15, from the Neffs Cloverettes; Susan Young, 14, also from the Neffs Cloverettes; Gail Snyder, 17, of the Germansville Happy Homemakers; Annette Wetzel, 17, from the Trexlertown Merry Stitchers; and Alice Wisser, 17, of the Lynnville Lassies.

Alternates for the winners of the senior winners were: Carolyn Reinert of the Trexlertown Merry Stitchers; and Sue Johnson, from the Neffs Cloverettes.

Junior winners were Cheryl Snyder, Brenda Hausamann, and Diane Krause; all of the Germansville Happy Homemakers club.

Junior alternates were: Lois Wisser, Lynnville Lassies; and Robin Stettler, Trexlertown Merry Stitchers.

Lehigh County also runs a "Mini-Models" competition in which young girls between the ages of 9 and 11 years old model their outfits in competition. According to Robert Leiby, 4-H coordinator for the Lehigh County Extension Service, the reason for this competition is to get the younger members involved in the program and give them experience for the older competitions. This year 19 girls entered the contest.

Mini-model winners were: Jennifer Creitz, Neffs Cloverettes; and Renee Keonig, Germansville Happy Homemakers.

Judges for the event were Diane Motichka, a registered nurse from Allentown, and Linda Anthony, consumer specialist at Lehigh County Community College. The judges commented on how "outstanding" they found the girls' garments to be made. The quality of the sewing was good and the clothes on a whole were well made. The judges further commented that the girls could improve their work in the areas of choosing the right material to suit the pattern, using more creativity in their sewing, and choosing the right current fashion suited for each individual.

Susan Young's outfit was a three piece suit, with a long wool plaid skirt, with a contrasting jacket and vest; Denise Yankovich modeled a coordinated off-the-shoulder blouse and gaucho skirt. A three piece dress and jumper suit was modeled by Nina Handwerk and Annette Wetzel wore a long dress and matching short-sleeved jacket. Alice Wisser modeled a hip-length slicker raincoat and Gail Snyder wore a western ensemble consisting of jacket, vest, slacks and blouse.

The six senior girls and three juniors were scheduled to go on to compete in the Southeast Pa. 4-H Dress Revue in which the counties of Berks, Norhampton, Bucks, Montgomery, Chester, Delaware, Philadelphia and Lehigh compete. From that contest, six senior girls are chosen to go on to the state level.

Heat 'burns'

occurred in the Delmarva Peninsula and New Jersey, where the poultry business is heavily concentrated. Drought has also been more pronounced there than it has in southeastern Pennsylvania, where rainfall has even been generous.

A survey of farmers follows:

Preston Bankert, Red Lion, says his pigs are doing fair. Sows don't have as much milk, but he's had no trouble with farrowing. The shoats on the lot are doing fine, but the pigs in confinement aren't doing the way they should.

Field conditions are quite dry in York County, Bankert continued, saying that the early corn looks good but needs rain badly. Soybeans look surprisingly good despite the conditions, a situation which might be due to moisture and humidity which was available for their growth right after planting.

Bankert described the sweet corn in his area as really poor, with the ears not even half filled out.

For the first time in his life, Bankert had to plant corn over again this year because of its failure to germinate during the severe dry spell. "I should have planted a lot more over," he admitted, stressing the extent of the drought in York County.

The York Countian described the small grain harvest as having been average, and yet "really good" considering the severe Winter and Spring the crops had to endure.

Ed, Dick, and Jim Yost of Tri-Y Farms, Bernville, milk over 100 Holsteins and report a decrease in their cows' appetites and production levels. A few more cases of mastitis have also been discovered. About the only times the cows go to the feed bunk is early in the morning and during the evening, says Ed.

Mark Yorgey of Red Wing Farms, Fleetwood, reports "the weather didn't hit us hard at all." The Yorgeys are poultry and crop farmers. He reports no significant problems either in the chicken house or field, and considers himself fortunate, realizing that some operators have been badly hurt by the sustained onslaught of high temperatures.

John Reese, who farms right on the Pennsylvania-Delaware state line, is concerned about running out of pasture despite having had rain about once a week. More is needed, he says, to keep the pasture growth coming. He recently quit his poultry business due to high feed costs.

James Hoopes, West Grove, has worked under conditions a lot of farmers can identify with: making, hauling, and stacking hay in this hot weather. The difference is that Hoopes is involved with 1000 acres of hay. "It's terrible trying to make hay and straw – a guy can only take so much of these hot mows," he commented in a telephone interview Wednesday evening.

Hoopes also noted that the heat was affecting the performance of his tractors. Corn is starting to curl up in some Chester County areas, he reported, although occasional showers have hit the County.

A mushroom grower near Kaolin says this hot weather is really bad for mushroom farmers who are attempting to get a harvest right now. That's not the case for most growers, however, since most mushroom houses are either empty now or being filled. It's the off-season for most mushroom farmers, but a few are on a different schedule. A big expense for mushroom farmers during this hot weather is air conditioning. The houses and storage areas have to be kept cool. Crops may be off by as much as 50 per cent for those who had mushrooms ready to harvest these last few weeks.

Marvin Weaver of Peach Bottom talked mostly about his new air-conditioned tractor when he was asked to describe the effects of hot weather on his farm. Having just purchased the air-conditioned Case, he's really happy about it because it's offering his some relief from the heat. "If it wouldn't be for that, I don't think I could keep at it every day," exclaimed the southern Lancaster County dairyman.

"We can't slow down because of this hot weather," Weaver continued, "when the hay is ready, we have to be ready too, and yet we can only take so much of this heat and humidity." He has put away 10,000 bales of hay so far this year.

Weaver noted that conception rates and production have dropped during the hot spell, but not as much as he might have expected. Milk production had held up until last Monday.

John Strawbridge, York County hog producer from the Stewartstown area says the hot weather has given him a few extra chores to do. He has his pigs out on pasture and helps to keep them cool by hauling water to them for drinking and "bathing." He says he has to be watching his 500 head of hogs very regularly to avoid losses and claims crops still look pretty good in his area. "It's dry, but we're not suffering yet," he concluded.

A farmer in the New Holland area reports that some of the corn is curling its leaves due to drought, despite showers passing through Lancaster County two and three times per week. Overall, he conceded, it's not bad though. Lancaster Countains consider themselves fortunate.

The prolonged hot spell was bad news to most farmers. The good news is that the heat wave is being replaced with some cooler weather.

Potato farm tour

YORK, Pa. - Potato growers in York County have announced their annual field inspection tour, scheduled for July 29, beginning at 10:00 a.m.

Participants will first visit the Clair Flinchbaugh farm, near Felton. Stops planned from there are at the farms of Roy Jackson, Jr., Felton, R2, Harry Miller, Jr., Felton R1, and Eugene Manifold, Airville R1.

The field inspection will end near Stewartstown at the Chem-Agro demonstration plots, where a barbecue luncheon will be served.

Reservations for the tour and the lunch can be made by contacting John Smith, York County Extension Service, at the Court House.

Conservation field day a re-run of last year

By DIETER KRIEG

STRASBURG - This year's Lancaster County Conservation District's annual field day was almost a complete re-run of the one held a year ago. Quite often the same names appeared on the winner's slate as were written there last July.

Frank Burkhart, 1030 Silver Springs Road, Lancaster, won the contour plowing contest for the third consecutive year.

Les Hershey, a Solanco vo-ag student, repeated as winner in the land judging contest.

Six-year old Melvin Sauder of New Holland captured the rooster for the second straight year.

Another competitor whose name has appeared on the winner's slate before is Richard Binkley of Columbia. Although he didn't finish first in his field last year, he was top man in level land plowing two years ago. He won the same title again this year after guiding four 14-inch bottoms to a smooth victory. He was third in the contest a year ago.

According to Binkley, who now has four county plowing contests behind him, the main thing to remember in the competition is to have the plow set right and take your time. He farms 200 acres of which about half is plowed up annually. He used a four bottom semi-mounted plow to win the event.

Melvin Sauder, 6, captured his second rooster in two years. He still has the one he caught last year too.

Burkhart, who has been participating in plowing contests since 1969, permanently retired the Conservation District's trophy when he won again this year. It was his sixth county title overall, and gives him another good aim at the national contest which will be held at Odell, Ill. on Sept. 15.

Burkhart has previously won three first places in each of the plowing categories, using either a small or large plow on level ground or contoured plots. He competes with three 16's although he does most of his plowing at home with a rollover model. He farms about 250 acres total, of which 100 to 110 acres get plowed each year.

"When working on a contour, work the wide parts away in advance, so you have a continuous width to plow when you clean up," the champion plowman told Lancaster Farming Tuesday afternoon. A member of the National Plowing Organization, Burkhart also advises competitors to be familiar with the rule book.

As a winner of all major state plowing titles, Burkhart is ineligible to enter the state plowing contest, which will be held next month at Ag Progress Days near State College. However, the Lancaster Countian is eligible for national competition. He has competed at that level twice before, garnering a third-place ribbon each time. This year he hopes to get out of that "rut."

Since Burkhart can't go to the state contest this year, Bob Hershberger of Quarryville will take his place. Hershberger finished second to him at Tuesday's contest.

In the level land event, Harvy Sauder - father of the Number One Rooster Chaser in the County - placed second. Sauder is a two-time state plowing champion. Jim Landis of Ronks was third.

Following Solanco's Les Hershey in land judging contest was Glenn Good of Garden Spot High School. Solanco dominated from third place on down with (in order) Dwayne Peifer, Wayne Bitner, and Bruce Kreider. Kreider won the second spot a year earlier.

In another feature event of the field day, Doug Hershberger, Quarryville R4, outraced and outgrabbed all the other "older" youngsters to emerge as winner of the annual pig chase.

The day's activities were held at the Ken Kreider farm, near here, with J. Everett Kreider of the Conservation District serving as chief organizer.

York County chooses 4-H dress revue winners

BAIR, Pa. - Three junior and eight senior sewing project competitors were named top winners during the York County 4-H Dress Revue July 15 at the county 4-H Center.

The participating girls were divided into circles of 10 to 12 members. Each circle selected three top winners from among themselves to enter the second step of the competition, where they appeared before adult judges.

Girls under the age of 14 as of January 1, 1977, comprise the junior category and were judged by Mrs. William Moyer, Dover, and Mrs. John Lightner, York. Competitors in the senior division were placed by Mrs. Warren Frey, East Berlin, Mrs. Joan Koolasch, Dover, and Mr. Israel Herman, of the Jack's Department Store, York.

Junior winners Kim Hoke, York, and Sandy Hurly, Stewartstown, won with casual dresses that they had selected. Kim's sundress was made with a contrasting jacket. Sandy chose a small floral print for her short-sleeve pullover dress, to which she added lace trim and a tie belt.

Kathy Ewing, Dillsburg, also a junior winner, selected a green wool plaid for her A-line skirt and matching vest.

Coats were winners for three senior entrants. Charla Janney, Brodbecks, chose brown and beige double-faced wool for her full-length wrap-around coat featuring a hood, and then finished off the flat-felled seams by hand. Washable suede cloth was the choice of Sue Risser, Dillsburg, for her loose-fitting coat which sported a back pleat, wooden buttons and raglan sleeves. Kay Swartz, Hanover, lined the hood of her plaid wool middy coat with suede cloth.

Three-piece suits were made by Lucinda Wilson, Glen Rock, and Chrisanne Schaeffer, Stoverstown. Lucinda sewed a pants suit in navy; and Chrisanne selected tones of red and gray for her outfit.

Tartan plaid made up the A-line skirt and matching jacket of Sue Swartz, Hanover, complete with a reversible vest. Linda Brown, Loganville, chose cornflower blue plaid for her skirt with a contrasting vest. Joanne Haskins, Spring Grove, designed a two-in-one reversable wrap-around skirt, topstitching the guaze and green materials.

Introducing FOLIAN.™
It gets more plant food into soybeans during pod-filling so you can harvest more beans.

The foliar breakthrough has been made. Allied Chemical's FOLIAN offers growers a practical way to get more nutrients into soybeans so more beans can fill to harvestable size.

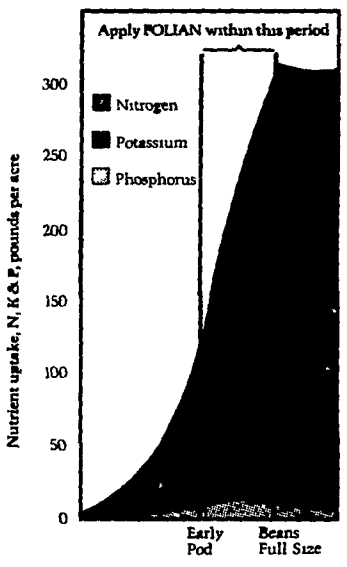
FOLIAN does it safely—without causing harmful leaf burn. And all it takes is one or two applications.

FOLIAN helps plants overcome their own limitations.

Even with adequate soil fertility, moisture and good management, most plants never come close to producing their full potential.

In soybeans, when pods are filling, the roots simply can't supply enough nutrients to meet the demand of the beans. The chart shows how the plant tries to compensate for this shortage. It takes away nutrients from the leaves and stems and translocates them to the beans.

Nutrient demands of beans and rest of soybean plant.



Compiled from Special Report 53(Rev) Iowa State University June 1971

Extends pod-filling period.

FOLIAN makes use of this translocation. It supplies additional N-P-K and S directly through the leaves during this critical demand period. With more nutrients available in the leaves, the pod-filling period is extended and more beans are able to fill to normal size. Typically about 10% more. But increases up to 20% and higher have not been uncommon.

Feeds through the foliage without harmful leaf burn.

The revolutionary feature about FOLIAN is the amount of plant nutrients, including N-P-K and S, you can apply at one time without causing serious burn damage. (Experience shows that minor leaf burn is acceptable and does not affect yield potential.)

Before FOLIAN, N-P-K could only be applied to foliage in small amounts. And making multiple small-dose applications isn't economically practical.

The breakthrough came in 1974. Researchers using FOLIAN compounds supplied by Allied Chemical successfully applied up to 600 #/A of a high analysis plant food containing N-P-K and S to soybeans without phytotoxicity.

Test work during the next three seasons in the U.S. and Brazil, produced yield increases ranging from 10 to 32% over untreated beans.

In 1976, a major field trial of 270 test plots was carried out on farms in 15 states. Different formulations, rates, and other variables were factored in to determine not only what worked best, but what wouldn't work at all.

Moisture was a major factor. Drought stress depressed FOLIAN response. Also, rain shortly after application limited response.

Planting within recommended dates helped response.

Soil fertility was important. Nutrient deficiencies affected yield response.

Method of application affected results. A uniform fine spray that penetrated the upper leaf canopy gave better results.

Research will continue with soybeans as well as other crops and refinements will evolve. But we now know enough about FOLIAN to make specific recommendations for successful use.

Doesn't replace good fertility and good management.

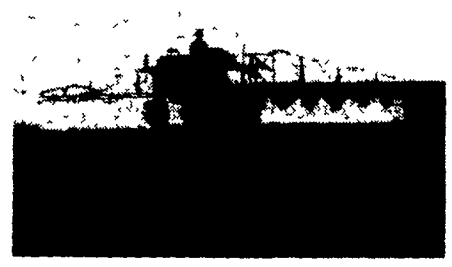
FOLIAN won't turn a poor crop into a good crop. It can only increase the yield of a healthy crop where good growing conditions exist.

If soils are deficient, spend money to correct the deficiency. Don't use FOLIAN on a crop with only a narrow yield potential.

Since you don't apply FOLIAN until the pod-filling period, you can wait and see if you have a good opportunity to cash in on FOLIAN.

If you have the moisture, the soil fertility, the pest control necessary, then you should apply FOLIAN by air or high-clearance ground rig. Anytime when pods at the upper nodes are ¼ inch long. . .to the period when beans are nearly filled.

FOLIAN goes on at 100 to 110 lbs. per acre—per application. With proper management practices and good moisture conditions, one or two applications should return $2 for every $1 invested in FOLIAN.



There's only one FOLIAN.

Remember, FOLIAN is unique. It contains special forms of N-P-K and S. Quality of manufacturing is unduplicated. And only Allied Chemical makes it.

For more information, call us collect: Allied Chemical Corporation, Agricultural Division, Hopewell, VA. 804/458-7811 ext. 2362. We'll send you more facts about FOLIAN so you'll be ready to make a good stand of beans more profitable.

important part about getting a champion show animal is to start with a good calf," the youth told this writer on a balmy Wednesday afternoon, while taking a break from a hot job in the straw mow. He looks for a good, stylish calf which will keep its stylish look the whole way from beginning to end.

Another key to success, according to Zimmerman, is working with the animal a lot to make him tamer and confident of his master. "You can do more with him then" the 18-year old explained.

Webworms attack locust trees

NEWARK, Del.—If you have a mimosa, honey locust or moraine locust tree and you see small clumps of leaves webbed together, you probably have an infestation of mimosa webworm.

This busy leaf-muncher makes his appearance every year around this time, reports University of Delaware Extension entomologist Frank Boys. Spotting him quickly is important if you want to prevent ugly defoliation of infested trees.

As these little pests become active, you may also see silk threads hanging from the tree, with small, pale grey or brown caterpillars attached. Cars parked under infested trees will become covered with tiny droppings. As the infestation progresses, tree leaflets become skeletonized, turn brown and die.

BEACON PRE-SERV* PROVIDES THE RAISER'S EDGE

FOR HIGH QUALITY FORAGE

Getting the most nutrients out of your forage crops is your best way to save feed bills. Along with your good management, Beacon Pre-Serv gives you an edge on the weather so you can harvest and store better forage. Beacon Hay Pre-Serv lets you bale hay at 25% moisture. That's a big help in rainy weather, because it can save you a day's waiting time and avoid loss of nutrients from wet hay. By treating hay with Beacon Hay Pre-Serv you reduce oxidation and retain more leaves and stems. The result: 10% more digestible nutrients. Up to 10% more protein.

Nearly 10% more income per ton of hay. Beacon Silage Pre-Serv helps keep haylage and grass silage fresh and sweet. Tests have shown that, in storage, Pre-Serv gives 7% more protein retention, increases lactic acid production 53%.

Pre-Serv products are a combination of natural acids, anti-oxidants and selected flavors. They help to maintain forage quality, so you will get greater palatability from your hay and silage—and that's another reason you get less waste, more profit.

Use them both this year, and get more nutrients from your forages.

Assured grain sales proposed

PEORIA, Ill. - A proposal which could result in expanded sales of U.S. grain was advanced here Monday by Myron R. Laserson, senior vice president, North American Grain Division, Continental Grain Company.

Speaking at the annual convention of the National Corn growers Association, Laserson advocated a program whereby customer nations buying grain from this country in surplus periods would be assured of supplies in times of shortage.

He suggested that our government officials, in a cohesive effort with producers and grain merchandisers, approach importing nations with a simple sales proposition: "In their best interest, to assure a dependable feed supply for livestock and poultry, they would be well-advised to over-buy during this period of abundance."

According the Laserson, the proposal makes "economic sense," and would guarantee corn and other feed grains to such buyers if and when the supply situation here becomes tight.

"We have in the past participated in the world grain shortage; it is only fair that the world now participate equitably in our surplus," he said.

Discussing the outlook for U.S. corn exports in 1977-1978, Laserson projected exports at about 1350 million bushels, or 300 million bushels less than the current crop year.

"The reasons," he said, "are known to all of us."

"First, 1977 production of feed grains in most of the major feed grain importing countries is expected to be larger than last year, lessening dependence on imports. Second, export availabilities in the major feed grain exporting countries are considerably higher in 1977 than in 1976, thus providing more competition for the U.S. Third, there is a world surplus of wheat, and in many areas today wheat is priced as a feed grain," he explained.

Laserson noted that non-U.S. supplies of other feed grains, primarily barley and sorghum, are well in excess of last year.

"We can expect these grains to make up a larger percentage of the world trade in 1977-78 than in the crop year just ending," he said.

Poultry dips

HARRISBURG, Pa. - Pennsylvania poultry production dipped again during the week ending July 9, according to the Pennsylvania Crop, Reporting Service, but continued at 17 per cent above the 1976 production levels.

Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth were 1,829,000. The placements were 17 per cent above the corresponding week a year earlier, but five per cent below the previous week.

Average placements in the Commonwealth during the past 10 weeks were 15 per cent above a year ago.

In the 21 key poultry producing states, placements were also down slightly during the week. Placements were 68,787,000, two per cent below the previous week but three per cent more than the same week in 1976.

Average placements in the 21 key states during the past 10 weeks were four per cent above a year earlier.

there might be a chance of shrinking.

Another piece of equipment this year that needs special attention at the Sammons home is the pony cart. It has to be sanded down and painted before the county roundup so that it shines when it is in the ring. That job takes a couple of days work.

After all the horse equipment is ready, the girls get their own outfits clean and pressed. Boots are shined, clothes are washed, all the pants, shirts, and jackets are inspected to make sure that they are in top shape. And as Pam Sammons added, "Don't forget to wear a belt, too."

Sue Baker, 17, a member of the Silver Spurs 4-H, rides her horse very day to keep him in shape and training for showing. But she also added that although her horse is a Morgan that she rides saddleseat, most of her riding is done out on trails and not in the ring.

"If I ride him in the ring too much he gets ringsour for me," Sue related. "He gets a little rowdy and excited and that's the main thing I have to watch for." So her horse, Windy Hill Prince, spends a lot of time being ridden in the open country.

When she is in the showring, Sue has various ways to keep him looking his best. She scratches his withers to get him to relax and put his ears up, and tries to isolate him from the other horses in the ring so that he doesn't worry about them.

"The most important thing to remember is to get the horse to relax and look his best in front of the judge," Sue further stated. "I try to divide my time between watching my horse and watching the judge and yet keep an eye out for any other horse that might be getting near me."

Sue believes the best thing about riding is having fun with the horse. She shows with the intention of doing her best but still enjoying herself at the same time.

Today, (July 23), all the above mentioned 4-H'ers with about 144 other members will have the chance to try their skill and luck at the Lancaster County 4-H Horse Roundup being held at the Lancaster Riding Club. In many farms and stables throughout the county, young horse lovers have spent a lot of time and effort getting ready for this event.

Crime linked to diet

Can malnutrition, food allergies and other nutritional deficiencies set off aggressive and mind-warping behavior leading to criminal acts? That question was raised in a recent Wall Street Journal article, reprinted in other newspapers across the nation. According to the Journal, "an increasing number of scientists and physicians" are beginning of think so. The article also cited law-enforcement procedures by which offenders can be ordered to change their diets, by replacing sweets and starches with high protein foods, fresh vegetables and fruits and vitamin supplements. If the offender refuses to change his diet, probation can be revoked.

Market reports now toll free in western Pa.

HARRISBURG, Pa. - State Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer recently announced that the department's livestock news service has been expanded to include a toll free telephone number for western Pennsylvania. Any individual, newspaper, radio or television station in the 814 and 412 area codes can use the service simply by calling the toll free number, 800-942-8084.

The number will provide information of interest to western Pennsylvanians and will include the grain and hay report, western cattle and hog prices, livestock and grain futures, local auction reports, and other market information of interest.

Shelhamer said that those wishing additional market information could call the statewide livestock hotline number at 800-692-7253.

Pig club meets

ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. - The Elizabethtown pig and rabbit club met July 14 at the home of Barry Heisey, Elizabethtown. It was discussed whether the club wanted to enter a float in the Manheim Fair.

There will be a club picnic on August 16 at the Elizabethtown Community Park, 6 p.m. Members are asked to bring covered dishes.

Members are reminded that the pig roundup will be August 8 and 9 at the Lancaster Stockyards, Lancaster, Pa.

Demonstrations were given after the meeting on parts of a pig, how to fit a pig, and how to show a pig. Members were then quizzed on their knowledge.

Ice cream hearing gets cold shake

WASHINGTON, D.C. - "By proposing a change that would severly alter the nutritional profile of ice cream, the Food and Drug Administration is opening the door for future adulteration of many food products,'' said Congressman Fred Richmond (D.N.Y.) on Monday as he announced Congressional hearings to investigate the proposed change.

Richmond, chairman of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Domestic Marketing, Consumer Relations and Nutrition, and Congressman Charles Rose (D.N.C.), chairman of the Subcommittee on Dairy and Poultry, announced they will conduct joint hearings August 2nd to take a closer look at the proposed change. Richmond said he was motivated to hold hearings after he found that "not only the nutritional character of ice cream would be changed, but there are serious economic implications for the dairy industry and for consumers. I strongly question whether this change is justified."

The new Food and Drug Administration regulations would allow for increased use of imported casein, which is a milk-derived chemical high in protein but low in nutrients found in standard milk products used in ice cream. By allowing increased use of casein, the FDA will allow decreased use of non-fat dry milk, a pure, domestically produced dairy product. FDA spokesman say they are making the change to provide better methods of measuring the milk solids in ice cream. Under the new regulations, ice cream would be measured for a minimum protein content of 2.7 per cent, but the ingredient composition of the non-fat milk solids requirement could be significantly altered.

Richmond said: "The FDA, by announcing this change, is opening the door for changes in many "standard" products. We already plagued with artificial products, and now we are confronted with a decision which could set a precedent for future cases involving the use of non-standard products. I am convinced the American public is fed up with such harmful, arbitrary decisions."

By allowing increased use of casein to meet protein requirements, the FDA is also allowing the use of other products not now used in significant quantities to simulate the flavor and texture of real milk. "For example," Congressman Richmond said, "ice cream manufacturers will have the opportunity to use more whey than at present, which varies in mineral content from seven to 25 per cent. There is no guarantee that the calcium content of ice cream will be maintained because most producers will be using combinations of ingredients, including sodium, potassium and calcium caseinate, among other so-called 'dairy products'."

"Moreover," Congressman Richmond added, "the FDA is promoting the non-standardization of ice cream ingredients. Although the new ice cream will be labelled for ingredients, each carton is likely to consist of different ingredient and nutritional profiles. The consumer will have no way of comparing the innumerable number of 'ice creams' that will be on the market. It will literally be a guessing game."

Casein is currently used as a whitener in "non-dairy" product labelled as "artificial." Under the new regulations, casein will be classified as a dairy product, and will be considered a "safe and suitable" ice cream ingredient.

Although ice cream manufacturers are not required to make the change from non-fat dry milk to casein, it will be economically profitable to do so.

"With ice cream production at nearly 800 million gallons per year, imports of casein and decreased use of non-fat dry milk would be dramatic," Congressman Richmond noted. Increased imports of casein would range from 39 million to 68 million pounds. At an average of 80 cents a pound, the cost of imported casein would be $30 million to $50 million annually. But it is also estimated, the Brooklyn Democrat said, that 293 million pounds of non-fat dry milk would be placed in the government loan program, thus increasing annual costs to the government by $183 million.

Congressman Richmond charged: "The more than $100 million difference would be absorbed by ice cream manufacturers in the form of windfall profits. And in making these profits, there is absolutely no guarantee that any of the savings would be passed on to consumers at the ice cream counter."

Environmentalists hit

representatives of 12 national environmental organizations.

"Professional environmentalists who contributed to the book," he said, "recommended that we redistribute land into small farm units, using handtools; that we switch away from mechanization and modern technology and use more human labor; that we give government much more control over our land and the food economy.

"In short, they would have us return to a peasant-feudal system of agriculture with government as our dictator if not our landlord. They would totally change the nation's society and economy–all in the name of the environment."

Finney said the proposed system would cause a drastic decrease in U.S. food production, an increase in production and distribution costs and higher food prices. The nation's standard of living would drop as more people returned to farms and quit producing other goods and services.

The environmentalists' report, Finney noted, is not just a statement of environmental goals in the normal sense. Among the recommendations are population control; redistribution of food supplies; a "luxury tax" on grain-fed meat; redistribution of land; "strict zoning" of land; "more human (labor) and less fossil fuel energy in farming; less use of fertilizer and other technology; more government planning and control.

Finney emphasized that he was not suggesting that environmental and pollution control problems be ignored, and he was not questioning the motives of most environmentalists.

"However," he added, "I do object to some professional environmentalists' using the environmental movement as a tool to achieve a more socialized, controlled society–telling people where they should live and work and what they should eat, and telling farmers how much land they may own and how they may use it. It is obvious that some of the proposals simply are naive, coming from people who do not understand agriculture and the private economy, and have not had experience outside the world of academia, government and professional environmentalism.

"It has taken us years to develop the food production techniques we now have. Less than five per cent of the U.S. population is engaged in producing food for the entire nation, plus millions of people overseas. Economic incentives, coupled with research and technology, are the reason for our superior food production efficiency. It is not something that is automatic.

"Farmers and ranchers now use less than three per cent of all the energy consumed in America; yet the environmentalists imply we are wasteful of energy and should change our whole food economy."

Finney expressed alarm that the environmentalists want to use taxpayers' money to "educate" the public to their concept of America. "For example, he said, "They suggest that the Environmental Protection Agency should monitor 'explicitly and implicitly environmental messages in the programming and commericals on television.' I find very frightening that kind of invasion of privacy and thought control."

The task force which prepared "The Unfinished Agenda"–under sponsorship of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund–included persons from the Natural Resources Defense Council, Friends of the Earth, The Wilderness Society, Zero Population Growth, National Wildlife Federation, Massachusetts Audubon Society, The Nature Conservancy, Environmental Defense Fund, Izaak Walton League, National Parks & Conservation Association, National Society and Sierra Club.

be taken care of by the County, but the 4-H program is responsible for building and maintaining the complex.

The first phase of the proposed center are the horse rings, which will hopefully help raise funds for the other planned construction, explained Miss Bleiler.

County 4-H clubs have been raising funds for the past five years, with hopes that the horse rings will help to raise additional funds. Once completed, the rings and buildings will be made available to other organizations and agricultural associations besides 4-H, County Agent Clyde Myers related. Monies raised from the rings will be used to help construct the rest of the complex.

Presently a combination horse show has been scheduled for September 3 and 4. There will be P.O.A. pony classes and open competition classes during the show, explained Myers.

The excavation for the horse rings is being done by Berks County Commissioner Vernon Shaffer, who has donated much of his free time to the project. Equipment has been donated by Number 1 Construction Company, which is building Blue Marsh Dam.

The fencing for the horse rings will be partially constructed from telephone poles from the condemned Blue Marsh area. Work parties have already gathered many of the poles to be used.

Miss Bleiler expressed her hope that construction of the buildings will begin next Spring. The Berks County 4-H program presently has over 1500 members and over 200 volunteer leaders participating in the 4-H activities throughout the county.

baugh, who spearheaded the beef referendum drive in the Keystone State, the top beef producing counties in the Commonwealth favored the referendum, but the great majority did not. In Lancaster County, for example, 247 people out of 332 registrants voted. The defeat in the Garden Spot was heavy, with 71 voting yes and 176 voting no.

It's noted that just a small percentage of those eligible for the vote bothered to register. Lancaster County, for example, had approximately 5000 to 6000 eligible voters, with only 332 registering and 247 voting.

The Beef Referendum, had it been passed, would have created funds for beef producers which they could have used for research, promotion, education, advertising, and market development at home and abroad.

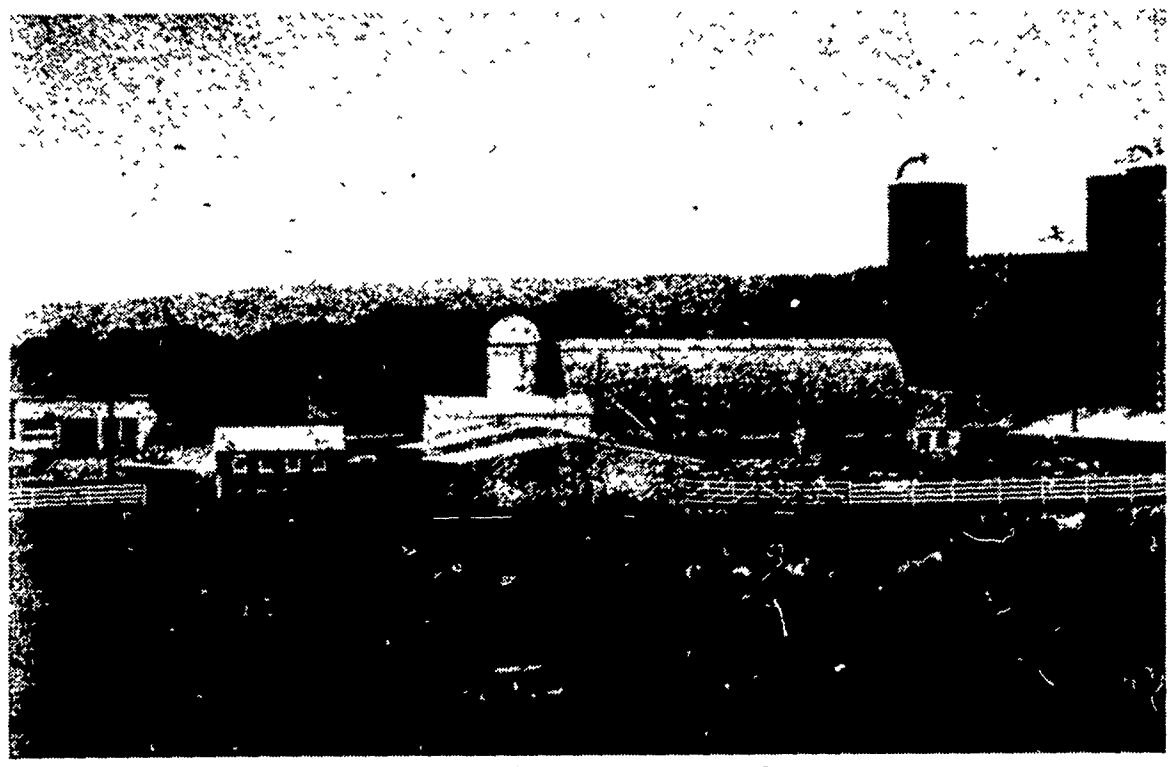
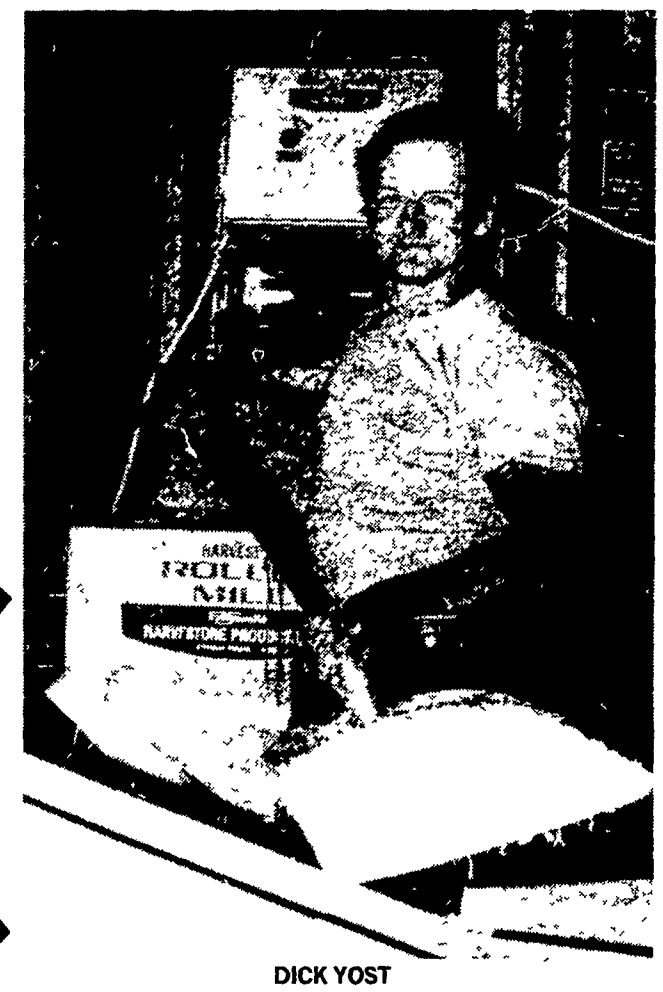
WE SALUTE THE YOST BROTHERS - ED, DICK AND JIM, of BERKS CO. FOR GOOD DAIRY AND FEED MANAGEMENT



July 1977 DHIA Rolling Herd Average:
17,198M 3.8% 660F on 118

The Yosts purchased their first Harvestore in the Spring of 1971 (a 2070 for haylage) and have since added three others for haylage, high moisture corn and corn silage.

One of the keys to the Yost Brothers' successful program is high moisture shelled corn. "It gets more energy into your cows," says Ed Yost, one of three brothers in the Tri-Y Farms partnership. "At first we couldn't see throwing all the cobs away, but we found out it pays. By feeding high moisture shelled corn the cows eat more haylage and roughage too. They take in more protein from crops grown here on the farm. Feeding is simple and easy and feed costs are cut."



DICK YOST

ED YOST

Here's what the Yosts like best about the Harvestore system:

BOTTOM UNLOADING—Keep unloading as you fill with the next crop. Never any carryover from the year before since the first crop in is also the first crop out.

BETTER FEED—We don't ever have to add anything to our haylage to keep it smelling good. Feed keeps well in a Harvestore.

CONVENIENCE—We can harvest a little earlier and aren't as much at the mercy of the weather when it comes to making good forage. Also, there's no fooling around with unloaders or dirty silo chutes when you get ready to fill.

SERVICE—The service is always very good; we never have to wait on anything.

JIM YOST

OWNERSHIP MAKES A BELIEVER OUT OF YOU

"We talked to a lot of guys before we bought our Harvestore. Everybody whom I talked to was satisfied. Nobody ever said anything against the Harvestore, and I never met anyone who used his Harvestore properly and didn't like it. Nobody quite believes it when you hear it, but you change your mind altogether when you have one. We have four and are well pleased with what Harvestores are doing for us."

Carroll County, Md., farm family subject of USDA educational series

By SUAN KAUFFMAN
Feature Writer

Joe and Nona Schwartzbeck, a dairy farm couple from Carroll County, Md., are young and energetic, and their wholehearted dedication to their particular farm and the dairy industry as a whole has put them into the public spotlight quite a bit in the last five years. Once more they have been brought to the public's notice.

"This time is different from the others, though," says Nona. "We enjoyed it because it is educational."

The Schwartzbecks and their dairy farm are featured in a 25 page booklet and a filmstrip compiled and published by the United States Department of Agriculture Office of Communication. These publications are part of a series entitled "People on the Farm". The booklet became available in May of 1976 and the film was released three weeks ago.

Nona explained, "The book and film are written for city people. The USDA sent out a writer who knew nothing about farming so that when he wrote about what he saw here in a manner that made sense to him, other non-farm people could understand too."

"Joe and I proofread the book, and our county agent and Joe and I previewed the filmstrip to catch any slip-ups."

When asked how the Schwartzbecks were selected as the first farm operation to be studied in this manner, Nona explained, "It's a case of someone knowing someone else, I think. Our county agent in Montgomery County where we once lived was asked by someone in the USDA office if he knew of a dairy farmer who would be willing to have photographers and writers visit his farm, ask him questions, and be willing to give frank, honest details."

The booklet writer came to the farm during the different seasons and brought photographers along to record parts of the dairy farming on film.

"A young man composed the slide presentation with the help of three different photographers. Our voices are mainly used for the dialogue though," says Nona.

The Schwartzbecks had been accustomed to visitors on their farm when they had hosted the farm visitation program. Ideally, under this program urban and suburban people were invited to come to farms for an educational outing. Mrs. Schwartzbeck says their two boys, Gus, then 10, and Shane, 6, at the time of the study, were thrilled with these camera toting visitors.

Homestead Notes

"The photographers and writer tagged along after Joe all day long," she explained. "They asked more and more detailed questions, and as you can see in the book, we gave them our complete financial statement."

Continuing her thought she said, "We didn't mind giving our statement because other businesses have their financial disclosures, too. How else would someone reading the book know just what is involved in production here unless he sees the actual figures?"

The dairy farm was a new experience for the writers and photographers, and a number of educational and humorous incidents resulted, Nona recalled.

"One phographer spent all one morning waiting until a calf was born," she remembered. "He was really thrilled to see that happen."

"Another phographer came in one day and exlaimed, "I saw a turkey! There is a real turkey out there!"

Nona was surprised because they had no turkeys. After checking out the fowl in question, Nona said it was only one of her dusty-grey guinea fowl!

The book, written for adults, consists of 25, eight by 10 pages of text and 29 black and white phographs describing the Schwartzbeck dairy farm and its operation. Also included in the booklet are seven charts showing national statistics on numbers of milking cows, the decrease in the number of herds and increase in number of cows per herd since 1969, and the financial resources needed and the returns from farming as compared in central New York and southeastern Wisconsin.

Acquainting the reader with the work-day routing on a dairy farm is the purpose of the first part of the booklet. The day at the Schwartzbeck's starts at 4 a.m. with Joe and Nona and a hired man in the herringbone parlor milking 86 registered Holstein cows by 7 a.m. Interspersed throughout the reporting of the milking procedure are facts such as costs of weigh jars, time for milking, production per milking on this farm and in the nation, as well as Joe's comments about the hot weather and its effects on the cows.

During the course of the day's activities on the farm, the writer stresses the importance of good, reliable help, the restrictive nature of dairy farming ("being tied down"), veterinarian skills necessary for daily herd health care, problems of timing seeding and harvesting, buying and selling grains, the importance of record keeping (including DHIA testing and registering animals), artificial insemination, the cost of equipment investment and maintenance, land and building costs in addition to herd costs, milk marketing orders, support prices, import quotas and government roles in agriculture.

Basic information about dairy farming presented both by national statistics and by the specific details on the Schwartzbeck farm are combined with their personal touches of conversation and pictures of Joe and Nona and their two boys.

Joe and Nona are busy in the community as well as on the farm, as the booklet points out. Included in the list of organizations in which they actively participate are their milk cooperative, the Carroll County Fair, two Holstein clubs, a progressive farmers club, and the Maryland Farm Bureau.

The writer summarizes the Schwartzbeck's way of living with the heading "Family is important to them." Contained in this closing section is Nona's observation, "We do a lot together as a family. I think families are kind of getting pushed into the background these days. I don't like that trend."

The Schwartzbecks bought their 291 acre homestead in 1968. Although the 16-room, nineteenth century house on Peace and Plenty Farm would keep any woman busy, Nona prefers the out-of-doors, gardening, feeding calves, milking cows or community activities. She says, "I would really like to start a dairy farm wives' club - one that would help get the farm wives to publicize and use their own products." Continuing her thought she said, "I like to serve banana splits or milkshakes or ice cream when we entertain. Guests really appreciate them."

"I think we farm wives should check out the dairy displays at the stores where we shop to see that they keep the products cold and clean. They say the milk served in our public schools is awful. It's not kept cold. How will kids grow up to be milk users if all they know is bad milk," she questions.

"We wives could have a big impact by educating the public," she emphasizes. "For instance, I see cars in shopping centers on these hot days with milk sitting in the back."

Mrs. Schwartzbeck also suggests, "Why not have a milk machine beside the soda machines to give the public a choice!" Or; she suggests that farm wives could ask for butter and cream instead of using the margarine and substitutes. She also recommends praising and patronizing restaurants which serve dairy products and avoiding those which refuse to use them.

Nona and Joe Schwartzbeck are a hard-working couple. They work at home and in the community activities they support and Nona sees a need to work even harder at educating the public at large concerning the business of dairy farming and the advantages of using dairy products. The book and film are a start. This Carroll County, Md., couple and their lifes' work are now an illustration in print and on film of a whole nation of dairy farmers - one type of people on the farm.

Copies of the slide set can be purchased for $24 from the photography division, Office of Communication, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. The filmstrip can be ordered for $17 from Photo Lab, Inc., 3825 Georgia Avenue, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20011. A cassette with soundtrack including both 50 Hz and 1000 Hz pulses to change frames automatically and two copies of the illustrated narrative guide are included in the price.

Arodent farm wife and dairy supporter Nona Schwartzbeck has a favorite chocolate cake recipe using a variety of dairy products which she has shared with Lancaster Farming.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How many things can go wrong in one day? You'd be surprised if you could envision a whole day's activities before they even take place. In fact, sometimes I think we'd be better off staying in bed.

Yesterday was "one of those days." While I was picking some of my bushels of green and yellow beans, my husband informed me that one of our older sons, who has come home to help us, had inadvertently chopped off my six foot English Walnut tree. I had bought it two years before and hoped to live to see it bear nuts.

Then one of our biggest and friendliest kittens was run over by our pickup truck. So I dutifully buried it in the corn field.

Next came a late afternoon thunderstorm which struck our telephone line with a large flash of light in the kitchen and a deafening crack. Now we had no phone to report that our water pump had stopped functioning, and the 50 cows had to be milked.

I've always found that lack of water is one the greatest inconveniences. How well I remember those five days without electricity some years ago when an ice storm hit us. I melted snow and more snow.

Oh, but our troubles weren't over for the day. Just before midnight, we discovered that a cow that had freshened that day was laying out flat with milk fever. No phone - so I drove about ā mile to a development to find a house with lights on, as I didn't want to chase anyone out of bed.

Almost forgot - had a flat tire in Lancaster too.

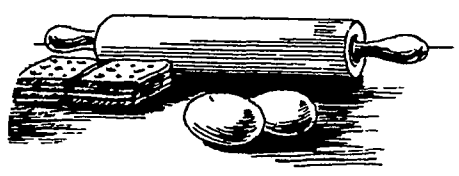
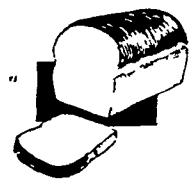
Home on The Range





With the fruit situation looking as good as it does this Summer, busy homemakers who like to prepare their own jams and jellies will have plenty to do from now until the end of August or mid-September. Therefore, this week, "Home on the Range" is featuring jams, jellies, and preserves for you to try as one of your batches. Several different ways to prepare peaches, pears, and grapes are provided, as well as recipes for blackberry jelly, cantaloupe marmalade, and beet marmalade.

And, since those first few tomatoes are turning red on the stalk right now, we are also featuring two tomato preserve recipes.

PEACH JAM

4 pounds fully ripened fresh peaches
¼ cup lemon juice
6 cups mild-flavored honey
1 package (3-½ ounce) powdered fruit pectin

Wash, peel, and remove pits from fresh peaches. Chop or coarsely grind peaches, blending with lemon juice. To measure prepared fruit, pack down in cup measurement—recipe calls for four cups.

Place fruit and lemon juice in large six-to-eight-quart saucepan. Add pectin, and mix well. Place over heat. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. (Oil rim of saucepan well and mixture will not boil over.) Oil measuring cup and measure honey. When fruit is boiling, stir and slowly pour in honey, blending well. Continue stirring and return to full rolling boil. When boil cannot be stirred out, boil exactly four minutes. Remove from heat. Alternately stir and skim for five minutes to cool slightly and to keep fruit from floating. Pour into prepared glasses, allowing ⅛ inch headspace for paraffin. Makes about 10 (six-ounce) glasses.

Mrs. Aneita Kershner
Butler Road, Md.

PEACH-ORANGE MARMALADE

5 cups finely chopped or ground peaches (takes about four lbs.)
1 cup (2 medium) finely chopped oranges
Peel of one orange, ground or shredded finely
Kernels from six peach pits (ground)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 cups sugar

Measure prepared fruit into kettle. Add remaining ingredients and stir well. Boil rapidly, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Remove from heat; skim and stir alternately for five minutes. Makes about eight (six-ounce) glasses.

Frances Oberholtzer
New Holland, Pa.

PEACH JAM

3 cups soft peaches, crushed
2 cups water
3-½ pounds sugar
1 teaspoon powdered alum

Add water to crushed peaches and cook until soft. Add sugar. When sugar has dissolved, cook rapidly until thick. Add alum and cook one minute longer.

Rebecca L. Yoder
Willow Hill, Pa.

PEAR JAM

6 large pears
2 green apples
1 orange
10 maraschino cherries
3 cups sugar

Wash fruit. Remove seeds and core, but do not remove skins. Put through the medium grinder of a food chopper. Add sugar. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Boil for 15 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Claire Coombs
Gardners, Pa.

PEAR AND APRICOT JAM

5 pounds pears
1 pound apricots
4 pounds sugar

Boil each fruit separately and put through sieve. Combine in large kettle and add four pounds of sugar, boiling until slightly thickened. Put in jars.

Doris J. Kauffman
New Holland, Pa.

BLACKBERRY JELLY

4 cups blackberry juice (takes about three quart boxes of berries)
7½ cups sugar
1 bottle liquid pectin

To prepare juice, sort and wash fully ripe berries; remove any stems or caps. Crush berries and extract juice. Then, place four cups juice in kettle. Stir in sugar. Place on high heat and stirring constantly, bring quickly to a full rolling boil that cannot be stirred down. Add pectin and heat again to a full rolling boil. Boil hard for one minute. Remove from heat; skim off foam quickly. Pour jelly immediately into sterilized hot containers and seal. Makes eight to nine (eight-ounce) glasses.

Mrs. James L. Coombs
Gardners, Pa.

CANTALOUPE MARMALADE

5 cups boiled, mashed cantaloupe
6 cups sugar
1 small can crushed pineapple
1 lemon, sliced fine
1 orange, sliced fine

Combine all ingredients, boil 30 minutes, and pour into sterilized jars and seal.

Mrs. Charles Biehl
Mertztown, Pa.

BEET MARMALADE

3 pounds peeled beets, julienned
1 pound honey
1 pound sugar
¼ pound sliced blanched almonds

Whie ginger, to taste

Cook noodle-like strips of beets in just enough water to cover, over slow heat. Strain when tender: add honey. Stir over slow heat until boiling. Add sugar, almonds and ginger. Cook until very thick and beets begin to turn brown. Seal in sterile jars or keep in refrigerator. Makes about two pints. NOTE: If beets begin to darken before mixture is thick enough, remove beets and boil syrup a few minutes by itself. Canned julienne beets, drained, may be substituted. Juice can then be boiled briefly with lemon juice, brown sugar, and salt to taste, and then cooled for beet soup to be served with sour cream and cut-up green onions, cucumber, radish and hard cooked eggs.

Mrs. James Coombs
Gardners, Pa.

GRAPE JELLY

6 cups red beet juice
6 tablespoons lemon juice or vinegar
2 (6 oz.) boxes concord grape flavored gelatin
2 boxes fruit pectin

To draw out red beet juice, use oversized beets which have been washed and peeled. Slice them approximately ¼ inch thick, cover with water, and boil until the water is a deep red color. Pour off the juice for later use. Discard the beets. Then bring six cups of the juice to a boil along with the lemon juice or vinegar, and the fruit pectin. This mixture must be watched closely because it quickly boils over. When above mixture is boiling, add two boxes grape-flavored gelatin and boil hard for one minute. Skim off foam if any appears. Pour in sterilized jars and seal. NOTE: This recipe is delicious with whole wheat toast.

Mrs. Earl Hege
Shippenburg, Pa.

GRAPE SPREAD

2 quarts grapes (blue)
2 quarts granulated sugar
15 tablespoons water

Boil all ingredients together for 20 minutes. Put through colander, using a wooden masher to press the fruit through. Place in jars and seal.

Lena Stoltzfus
New Providence Pa.

RHUBARB-STRAWBERRY JELLY

5 cups rhubarb, cut into small pieces
4 cups sugar
3 ounce package of strawberry gelatin

Combine rhubarb and sugar, stirring well. Let set overnight. Boil five minutes in the morning and add one (three-ounce) package of strawberry flavored gelatin. Stir well until dissolved and seal or freeze. According to Mrs. Wenger, this recipe is quick, simple to prepare, attractive in appearance, and very delicious.

Mrs. Raymond Wenger
Lititz, Pa.

TOMATO PRESERVES

1 tablespoon mixed pickling spices
1 piece ginger root to taste
4 cups sugar
¾ cup water
2 lemons, thinly sliced
1-½ quarts small firm, yellow, green or red peeled tomatoes (about two pounds)

Do not core tomatoes. Tie spices in a cheesecloth bag; add to sugar, lemon, and water. Simmer 15 minutes. Add tomatoes and cook gently until tomatoes become clear, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking. Cover and let stand 12 to 18 hours in a cool place. Heat to boiling and pack tomatoes and lemon into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch head space. Remove spice bag. Boil syrup two to three minutes or longer if too thin; pour, boiling hot, over tomatoes, leaving ¼ inch head space. Adjust caps. Process half-pints and pints 20 minutes in hot-water bath.

Makes about six half pints.

Mrs. James Coombs
Gardners, Pa.

RED TOMATO CONSERVE

7 lbs. ripe tomatoes
3 lbs. brown sugar
2 cups cider vinegar
4 sticks cinnamon
2 tablespoons whole cloves

Peel tomatoes and cut into chunks. Boil 45 minutes and drain off juice. Add the other ingredients (spices are tied in a bag), and all are simmered for another hour. Pour while hot into sterilized jars. No need to process, but store in cool place. Serve with meatloaf or fish.

Over the years, one thing about Mol-Mix never changed.
Quality.

From the first day that Mol-Mix® was made, the people at National Molasses made it with quality ingredients . because they knew a better-quality supplement would mean more net profit for the cattlemen who used it.

Today, instead of decreasing or eliminating these quality ingredients because of shortages and higher costs, Mol-Mix has maintained the same level of quality that has made it the liquid leader.

BUFFERED RELEASE IS JUST PART OF OUR QUALITY STORY

Occasionally, somebody finds out about one of our unique features and gets really excited about it. For example, our buffered release of urea ammonia, heralded by other supplements as a brand-new innovation, has been in Mol-Mix for years to improve its protein-building efficiency And our performance-proven ingredients, like corn distillers solubles, condensed fermented corn extractives, phosphoric acid, and ammonium polyphosphate, have yet to be included in most other supplements!

Stop in soon We would like to demonstrate the dramatic results that Mol-Mix can bring to your herd in terms of performance and profits. We're not talking about something that will only add to your supplement costs . . we're talking about the bottom line.

HOW TO PREVENT MILDEW

Molds which cause mildew thrive in the moist humid weather we have been experiencing this month.

Molds thrive on cotton, linen, rayon, silk and wool. Soiled clothing makes a particularly good site for mold, which feeds upon dirt and grease. Even many man-made fabrics, which resist mildrew must be kept scrupulously clean because soil on them may supply food to start mildew.

To prevent mildew, wash soiled clothing before storing. Never place wet articles in a hamper. Keep closets, dresser drawers, basements and other susceptible storage areas as clean as possible. Ventilating these areas will help remove excess moisture. If natural breezes are not sufficient, use a fan, air conditioner or dehumidifier. Products such as silica gel, activated alumina or calcium chloride also absorb moisture. They may be purchased in department or hardware stores. Follow directions carefully when using.

If mildew has already appeared on clothing, brush off the mold outdoors so spores have no chance of scattering in the house. Launder washables with detergent or soap and chlorine bleach, if safe for fabric. Otherwise, soak the item in an oxygen bleach, then wash. Non-washables should be dry cleaned, and the stain identified as mildew.

A FOOD FOR ALL SEASONS

Using nonfat dry milk is always an economy measure. You sacrifice little in the way of nutrition, for nonfat dry milk is milk processed and refined to an instantly soluble form which only the fat and water content missing. What you gain is a low-cost milk that is instantly available.

You can keep it for emergencies or for use in cooking. Use it as your daily milk drink or add it to regular milk to extend your fresh milk or simply to give yourself a protein, mineral and vitamin boost.

Take it camping or traveling. It packs light and can be mixed in only the quantity you can use immediately. It requires no special care or attention. It's convenient and easy to use in such camping food favorites as pancakes, scrambled eggs, or biscuits.

It can be used effectively in most recipes calling for milk. It need not be reconstituted for baking purposes. Add it in powder form to the dry ingredients, and then add water for he liquid measure.

Mix it with ice cold water and beat vigorously for a dessert topping that has the consistency of whipped cream. Or, mix it with a concentrated fruit juice for a delicious but light dessert that is nutritious and blissfully low in calories.

Nonfat dry milk stores well in your pantry and has a shelf life of about six months. It should be tightly covered to avoid absorption of any moisture. Once reconstituted, of course, it must be treated like fresh milk.

Buy it by the box, mix it by the quart, and drink it by the glass. Whatever your family requirements, mix what you need when you need it.

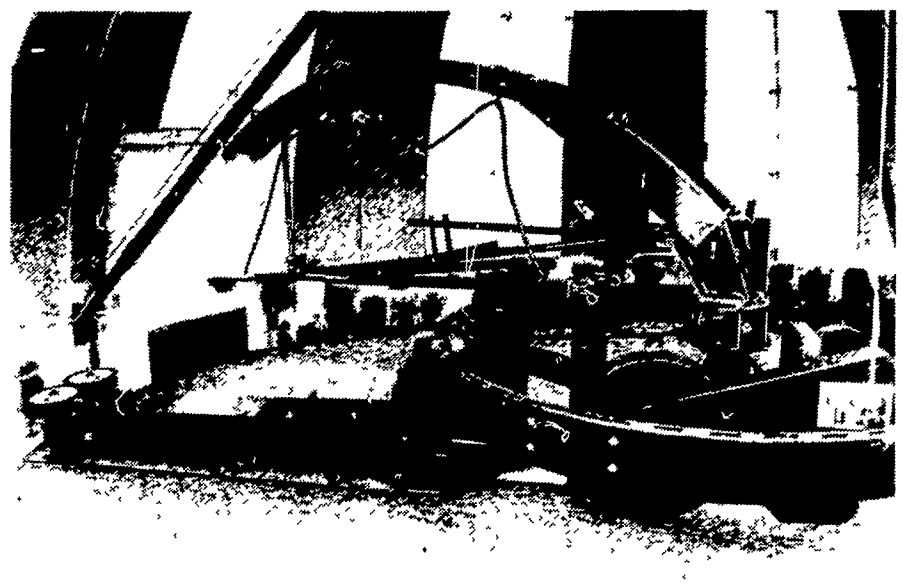
POW-R-TRAC 2: THE NEW GENERATION SILO UNLOADER FROM BADGER

The Pow-R-Trac 2 is Badger's new generation of farm-proven ring-drive silo. The Pow-R-Trac 2 can unload from higher in the silo than any other ring-drive model... it shaves walls clean of the hardest, toughest material...and it cuts evenly from the top of your silo all the way to the bottom, even through hard-packed haylage or frozen corn silage.



Ask your Badger dealer about the many benefits Pow-R-Trac 2 offers you! He has a lot of good reasons to...

Buy Badger.

Need for crop reports explained

WASHINGTON - The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) has asked farmers to report 1977 wheat and feed grain acreages. Acting ASCS Administrator Victor A. Senechal explained the reason for this request and the significance of the report.

Under proposed farm legislation, reported by Senate and House agriculture committees, and effective for 1978 and succeeding crop years, the secretary would have authority to require a set-aside of cropland as a condition of eligibility for program benefits. It is expected that the set-aside provision would be used only when the supply situation for the program crop indicates its need.

"In the event a set-aside is deemed necessary for any program crop in 1978, the proposed bills provide that the amount of set-aside may be based upon either 1978 or 1977 plantings," Senechal said. Because of these alternatives, it is important that farmers who are interested in participating in future farm programs voluntarily report their acreages.

Under both farm bills, 1977 crop acreages would have no effect on the 1978 program acreages eligible for target price guarantees and disaster program protection. Current farm bills indicate target price payments would apply to a percentage of planted program crops (example, 80 per cent of the planted acres).

The ASCS official pointed out that the acreage report is not a precedent because in prior years crop acreages have been reported which had no effect on program participation. Farmers have been reporting acreages of upland cotton, peanuts, rice, and tobacco. "We're encouraging a voluntary response to obtain acreages involving wheat, corn, grain sorghum, and barley."

The deadline for reporting crop acreages is July 31 for barley and wheat. Corn, sorghum, and tobacco may be reported through September 1.

"If there is a set-aside based on 1977 plantings for one of the crops in 1978 and we have no report," Senechal said, "we will have no crop acreage on which to base the set-aside, and this could hamper the farmer's ability to participate in a program.

Approximate protein and energy value of 4.1 ton load of corn silage testing 50% moisture equals $60.00.
Approximate protein and energy value of a 5 ton load of corn silage testing 70% moisture equals $105.00.

The above examples show approximate difference in the value of low moisture and high moisture corn silage.

Values reflect difference in yield per acre, silo capacity, net energy, digestible protein and animal performance as reflected by university research.

Energy and protein values are based on soybean meal at $200.00 per ton and corn at $1.50 per bushel.

Grow the protein and energy you need, and save the energy and protein you grow!

CYGON*400

SYSTEMIC INSECTICIDE

Protects ALFALFA From Potato Leafhopper DAMAGE

THE POTATO LEAFHOPPER CAUSING YELLOWING/REDDENING AND STUNTING OF NEW SEEDLINGS AND ESTABLISHED STANDS OF ALFALFA SEEN DURING JUNE, JULY, AUGUST, AND SEPTEMBER ARE PRIMARILY CAUSED BY THE POTATO LEAFHOPPER, NOT A LACK OF MOISTURE, AS MANY BELIEVE.

Why CYGON?

Because CYGON Gives You Yield Protection . . . .

- Contact action for quick results.
- Residual activity on the leaves.
- Systemic action for control from within the plant.
- Moderate toxicity.
- Low cost per acre, and availability in easy-to-use five gallon containers.

HANDLE THE BIGGEST FIELDS, BIGGEST YIELDS!

NEW IDEA ONE-ROW SUPER PICKER

Let your Superpicker, corn cribs and Mother Nature do the work, and don't worry about the rising cost of fuel for drying. Superpicker does an outstanding job of bringing in your crop . . . and it costs less, too.

Berks reviews 4-H garments

LEESPORT, Pa. — "Summer Magic" was the theme of the Berks County 4-H fashion review on July 15 when more than 60 participants modeled their garments to a full auditorium at the Berks Agricultural Center.

The fashion show was a climax to a long afternoon of activities for all the girls, but for the winners, it signaled the beginning of preparations for regional competition at the Lehigh Valley Mall in Allentown held on July 22.

The top winners who were chosen to attend regionals were: seniors - Arlene Crumrine, of Kempton Community Club; Diane Evans, Kutztown Community Club; Lynda Hart, Leesport Club; Karen Kniss, Oley Valley Knick Knacks; Christine Yos, Kutztown Community Club; and Christine Wolfe, Bern Boosters 4-H Club.

Internationals roar at Buck

THE BUCK—The red and white colors of International were seen in the first three places of two of last week's classes at the Buck Tractor Pulls, here.

Tom Middleton of Ridgely, Md. was the big winner in both of those classes, taking his IH 1066 to first place in the 12,000 and 9000 pound super stock categories. He managed a full pull in the lighter class, while the sled stopped him at 267-9 in the heavyweight category. Tom Bedgar of Freeland, Md. took second place in the 12,000 pound class with a pull of 257-7 from his IH 856. He finished third in the 9000 pound class. Harry Griest placed third in the heavyweight division and second in the 9000 pound class, driving an IH 1456.

"Junk" is the name of this eye-catching monstrosity. All kinds of attachments and tubing keep the competitors guessing as just to what makes this tractor go the way it does.

Another double-winner at last week's pulls was Lester Houck of Kinzers, driving a machine powered by twin Dodge engines. He won both the 9000 pound open and 7000 pound modified classes. Griest took second place in the 9000 pound open division, going for a distance of 270 feet and eight inches. Richard Zimmerman of Mount Joy placed third with a pull of 256 feet. Like Houck, he was piloting a twin-Dodge powered machine.

In the 7000 pound modified class, Houck was followed by Zimmerman of Mount Joy and Greg Manners of Ringoes, N.J.

Results of other classes are as follows:

5000 pound modified

1. Gary Mills, Fallston, Md.; 2. Bill Cobb, Shiloh, N.J.; 3. Ned Wolfe Bedford, Pa.

5000 pound super stock

1. Coleman Wheatley, Bethel, Del.; 2. Jim Brubaker, Quarryville; 3. Dale Smoker, Cochranville.

7000 pound super stock

1. Marlin Brubaker, Quarryville; 2. Coleman Wheatley.

Facts for dairymen

By Alan Bair
Assoc. County Agent
Lancaster, Pa.

We have all seen the TV commercial about the "choosy" mother who chooses the supposed wrong brand of peanut butter. Last week while observing a family milking in hopes of improving milk quality, I ran into another choosy mother. This particular housewife got upset because the teenager who was carrying the milk from the stable to the milkhouse put the milk from the "house cow" into the tank.

Her comment was, "I'm fussy about which cow I drink milk from." My thought was "I and the rest of the milk consuming public have to drink everything you put in the tank."

I would hope that it comes as no surprise to you as a dairyman that milk quality cannot be improved at the dairy plant. It's as good as its going to be as it goes onto the truck from your tank.

Another simple fact of the milk industry is that consumers buy what they like and therefore milk consumption is related to milk quality. You can't afford to be putting milk in the tank that does not come from "house cows".

xxx

Through your experience we are finding that the care you give your dry cows greatly influences how that cow will respond during lactation. Probably the biggest variables that you have control over in handling the dry cow are the actual drying-off process and the feeding of that dry cow.

Recently while discussing these areas with some dairymen, Larry Hutchinson, our Extension Veterinarian, offered these suggestions:

Drying-Off Time

Cows producing less than 20 pounds per day: cut out grain feeding and stop milking.

Cows producing more than 20 pounds per day: cut out grain, severly limit silage for 3 days and stop milking. If excessive filling of the udder occurs, it may be necessary to strip out the udder 2 to 3 days after drying off.

Dry treatment: Treat each quarter with a long-acting dry cow tube at the time of the last milking.

Alternative dry cow program: In herds with low leukocyte counts and a low incidence of mastitis, consider selective dry cow treatment. Dry treat only quarters that (1) have had clinical mastitis, or (2) are positive on CMT or (3) are positive on culture.

Teat dipping: Continue to dip teats for one week after drying off.

Feeding the Dry Cow: Avoid over conditioning: Limit grain intake to .5 per cent of body weight per day (that's 6 pounds for a 1200 pound cow) and limit corn silage to not more than half of the forage dry matter intake.

Limit calcium intake: Feed less than half of the forage dry matter as legume hay or haylage and maintain a Calcium to Phosphorus ration between 1 to 1 and 2 to 1.

Limit protein intake: Ten percent crude protein in the total diet for dry cows is adequate.

Allow a three week period before calving to acclimate the cow to the milking ration. Energy intake may be increased moderately during this period.

Injectable vitamins A, D and I three weeks before calving are useful, espcially during the barn season. Injectable selenium may be indicated three weeks before calving in herds with retained placenta problems.

$9.06 paid for Order 2 milk

New York, July 13 - Dairy farmers supply milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during June will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $9.06 per hundred pounds or 19.5 cents per quart. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced June's price, also stated that the uniform farm price was $8.98 per hundredweight in May 1977 and $8.88 per hundredweight in June 1976. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund (Louisville Plan) removed a total of $3,549,244.18 or $.40 per hundredweight from the dairy farmers' uniform price for June. Total deductions for this fund for March through June 1977 aggregated $11,411,388.82. The Fund, plus interest, will be distributed in the August through November uniform price calculations.

The total amount of milk received from the 18,819 dairy farmers supplying the New York-New Jersey Marketing Area was 887,311,046 pounds during June 1977. This was more than 11.5 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $80,601,049.98. Mr. Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) utilized 361,930,718 pounds or 40.8 per cent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid products such as homogenized, flavored, low-test and skim milks. For June 1977, handlers paid $11.00 per hundredweight for the milk used in Class I products compared with $10.84 a year ago.

The balance of the milk, 59.2 per cent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this milk the handlers paid $8.49 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 per cent butterfat. For June 1977, a differential of 11.6 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one per cent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 per cent standard.

All prices quoted are for milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Pennsylvania beef cook-off i

BETHLEHEM, Pa.—Judy Reynolds of Edinboro, Pa. took first place in the second annual Pennsylvania Beef Cook-Off held last month at UGI, Bethlehem.

Mrs. Reynolds won $100 for her "Roulades of Beef with Eggplant Parmesan Stuffing." The norwestern Pennsylvania woman will represent the state in the National Beef Cook-Off on September 15 and 16 in Columbus, Ohio.

Gloria T. Bove of Bethlehem received $50 for second place with "Beef 'N Cheese Roulade Voila;" Mrs. Anthony Mantione also of Bethlehem was the third place winner with "Beef Steak Crepes - Stroganoff Style;" and Mrs. Louis Baker of Beallsville placed fourth with her "Old Fashioned Baked Steak."

Dishes were judged on taste, appearance, and originality. Judges were Marie Malley, home economist with UGI; Renee McQuaide, assistant editor of the Pennsylvania Farmer; Richard Sanders, owner of Time Market stores; and Judy Stover, Pa. Department of Agriculture.

The cook-off was sponsored by the Cow Belles and the Pa. Beef Council.

The winning recipes follow.

ROULADES OF BEEF WITH EGGPLANT PARMESAN STUFFING

Eggplant Parmesan Stuffing

12 large slices (about 3½ to 4 inches in diameter, cut about ¼ inch thickness) eggplant
1½ cup finely crumbled bread crumbs
3 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon salt
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 teaspoon cold water

Combine bread crumbs, Parmesan cheese, pepper, and salt in plastic bag. Dip each eggplant slice in mixture of egg and water. Place each slice in bread crumb mixture and shake to coat. Fry coated eggplant until golden on both sides, turning once. Drain on paper towels. After eggplant has cooled, dice into small pieces using a knife.

Beef

2½ to 3 pounds beef top round steak, ¼ inch thickness (cut into 12 rectangles and pounded to 1-8 inch thickness)
4½ cups prepared spaghetti sauce (can either homemade or store bought)

1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese
Hot cooked spaghetti
Parsley sprigs

Bernaise-style White Sauce

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
1½ cups milk
1 egg yolk, beaten

Pour one cup of spaghetti sauce in bottom of a 13 x 9 inch baking dish. Transfer browned filled beef rolls to baking dish. Pour on another cup of spaghetti sauce. Cover baking dish tightly with foil. Bake in preheated oven (350 degrees F.) about one and one-half to two hours until desired tenderness. About 10 minutes before serving, sprinkle rolls with Mozzarella Cheese and allow cheese to melt in oven. About 15 to 20 minutes before serving, heat remaining 2½ cups spaghetti sauce in small saucepan. Prepare Bernaise-style White Sauce by melting butter in medium size saucepan over low heat. Blend in flour. Gradually add milk. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add small amount of hot liquid to egg yolk and then add egg mixture to remaining sauce in pan. Cook, stirring for one or two minutes longer until smooth. Season with salt and pepper to taste.

To serve:

Lambs fed poultry excreta

MADISON, Wis. - Poultry excreta is superior to urea as a nitrogen source in high fiber diets fed to growing lambs, says Dr. Lewis W. Smith, an animal scientist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

In research at the Beltsville Agricultural Research Center in Maryland, Smith divided 48 lambs into four groups and fed them complete pelleted diets containing either corn stalks or wheat straw as the fiber source and either dehydrated poultry excreta or urea as the nitrogen source. These diets were fed for 60 days. Supplements contributed, on the average, 35 per cent of the total dietary nitrogen.

On the high fiber diets, lambs gained an average of 91 grams per day. Lambs fed wheat straw gained more weight than those fed urea. Lambs grew best on diets containing wheat straw supplemented with poultry excreta. Overall, the poultry excreta was a more efficient source of nitrogen.

After 60 days, these same lambs were divided into two groups and fed ground ear corn in place of the wheat straw and corn stalks. The diets were again supplemented with either urea or dehydrated poultry manure and fed for 60 days. The supplements contributed 20 per cent of the total dietary nitrogen. On these grain finishing diets, the source of nitrogen had no effect on the weight gains of the lambs. Lambs gained an average of 201 grams per day.

½ teaspoon pepper, divided
4 tablespoons chopped parsley, divided
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese, divided
2 cups Ricotta cheese (Italian cottage cheese)
1 cup shredded Mozzarella cheese
1 cup dry, hot, mashed potatoes, unseasoned
¼ cup dry bread crumbs (plain or Italian style)
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce

Soak soft crumbs in milk until soft. Place two eggs in a large bowl; beat slightly.Add the crumb mixture, ground beef round, ground beef chuck, garlic, lemon peel, allspice, salt, ½ teaspoon of the pepper, two tablespoons of the parsley and ½ cup of the Parmesan cheese. Mix well.

Combine Ricotta cheese, Mozzarella cheese, potatoes, remaining ¼ teaspoon pepper, two tablespoons parsley and ¼ cup Parmesan cheese, and two eggs, slightly beaten. Mix well.

Cut a sheet of foil and place a sheet of waxed paper over the foil. (The foil will help when you pick up the roll when you place it in the baking dish.)

Sprinkle the dry bread crumbs on the sheet of waxed paper; pat out the meat mixture into a 10" x 12" rectangle. Spread the cheese filling over the meat. Lift edge of waxed paper and roll up like a jelly roll. Press ends to seal. Place in a greased baking dish. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. (In case meat contains excess fat, remove it with a baster or spoon during the baking period.) Pour sauce over the meat; sprinkle with additional grated Parmesan cheese. Bake 10 minutes longer.

Garnish with hard boiled egg wedges, Spanish olives and parsley. Makes six servings at approximately 85 cents a serving.

OLD FASHIONED BAKED STEAK

1 entire 1" thick slice of round steak, cut into 4 sections (for ease of handling). Approximately 4 to 5 pounds.
3 cloves of garlic, and 3 toothpicks.
Suet
Salt and pepper

Using enough small pieces of suet to make enough fat to cover the bottom of a large skillet, heat until completely rendered. Then add one section of steak at a time, adding salt and pepper to each side, and sear. Remove each section, to a large roaster, as it is seared.

Brown sufficient flour in the drippings, adding salt and pepper to taste, and using milk instead of water to make a medium gravy. Pour this gravy over the seared steak sections in the roaster. This gravy should cover the steak.

Place one toothpick through each clove of garlic (so they can be removed later). Place garlic down in the gravy around the steak. Place lid on roaster. Bake slowly (300 degrees F) one-half to two hours, until steak is fork tender and gravy brown. Remove garlic before serving. NOTE: In case gravy curdles after cooking short time - add boiling water and it will smooth out again.

Desinewing improves ground beef

MADISON, Wis. - Juicier, more tender hamburgers can be made from ground beef that has had the connective tissue removed, says Dr. H. Russell Cross, a food technologist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service.

Americans consume about 11 billion pounds of ground beef every year, mostly in the form of hamburgers. Much of this ground beef comes from cows eight to ten years old. The meat from these older beef cows has more flavor than the meat from younger animals, but it is tough due to the type and amount of connective tissue it contains.

A process called desinewing can be used to remove this tough connective tissue. Beef to be desinewed is first coarsely ground in a meat grinder and then placed in a machine which separates the connective tissue by forcing it out under pressure. This process also removes bone chips or other contaminants that may be in the meat.

In taste panel tests at the Meat Science Research Laboratory, Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, Md., patties made from several different cuts of desinewed beef rated higher for flavor, tenderness, and juciness than patties made from the same cuts from conventionally ground beef. In fact, patties made from desinewed beef from old bulls made the best patties overall.

Removing the connective tissue from the beef also increased its nutritional value since there is more meat in relation to connective tissue, which has lower nutritional value.

Nutrition group critical of McGovern report

ROSEMONT, Ill -- A recent statement by the board of directors of the prestigious Society for Nutrition Education (SNE) takes specific exception to the "Dietary Goals for the United States," proposed by Senator McGovern's Senate Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs. Similar to the stand by the American Medical Association, SNE's statement says that the evidence on which the "goals" are based is "limited to epidemiological data and food disappearance studies which result in population needs rather than individual goals."

McGovern's report was published earlier this year and generated considerable objections from the agricultural community.

Continuing its comment the SNE statement said: "It would be more beneficial to nutrition education if a group such as the Food and Nutrition Board, National Research Council - or an expert task force comprising representatives from the Food and Nutrition Board, National Insitutes of Health, and voluntary and professional organizations - could review, evaluate, document, and elaborate on the goals suggested by the staff of the Senate Select Committee. A scientifically supported presentation of current knowledge and opinion regarding diet and disease, indicating gaps and research needs, coming from such a group, would give stronger support and justfication for programs to encourage modifications of dietary habits in line with the stated goals. Recommendations should represent achievable goals which are modifications rather than replacements of current practices.

"We believe some additions should be made to the goals as published. For example, obesity is a major health problem, one related to increased risk from several other diseases, e.g., hypertension. Obesity is directly related to food intake in excess of energy output needs. For this reason, we feel that general goals for calorie consumption are important.

"SNE would be glad to cooperate with the Senate Select Committee in refining the dietary goals so that they can begin to be realistically implemented in nutrition education programs."

Comments such as those of the AMA and SNE, and from many scientists and physicians, regarding the dietary "goals" reportedly will be published this Fall by the McGovern Committee. And, according to Dairy Industry Newsletter, some revisions of the report will be made "within a year." But, says DIN, "contrary to rumor, committee staff members stress that there are no plans to withdraw or substantially alter the original recommendations that, among other things, Americans should eat foods low in saturated fat, cholesterol, salt and sugar."

In the original "goals" document last January, the so-called prudent diet, which the American Heart Association has been plugging for many years, was substantially adopted by the McGovern Committee staff.

Glucose aids forage digestion

MADISON, Wis. - Glucose, when infused into the fourth or true digestive stomach (abomasum) of cattle on a high forage diet, improves the utilization of acetic acid, says Dr. Henry F. Tyrrell, an animal scientist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service. More efficient utilization of acetic acid can mean increased weight gains in cattle on forage diets.

Previous research at the Belstville Agricultural Research Center in Maryland showed that cattle utilize acetic acid, a major end product of digestion, more efficiently when it is part of a grain diet, than when it is part of a forage diet. Cattle on forage diets absorb a higher proportion of energy as acetic acid, but apparently the acetic acid cannot be utilized as well, limiting the rate at which cattle gain weight. Scientists believe that some factor in grain improves acetic acid utilization, and they are now looking for that factor.

Tyrrell infused six yearling Holstein heifers on a high forage diet with either acetic acid or glucose. There was little utilization of metabolizable energy (ME) from the acetic acid, but 60 per cent of the ME of the glucose was used. When he infused the acetic acid and glucose together, the ME from the mixture was used as efficiently as was glucose alone, indicating that it is the glucose that is necessary for efficient use of acetic acid. In fact, a small amount of glucose added to the diet produced changes similar to those that would have been produced from a large amount of grain.

Although glucose cannot be fed directly to cattle, cattle are able to synthesize it from substances called glucogenic precursors. Increasing the amount of glucogenic precursors in the diet may help cattle utilize acetic acid more efficiently.

More research is needed, but Tyrrell hopes that further studies will lead the way to improving the efficiency of forage diets for growing and finishing cattle.

Grain production surveyed

HARRISBURG - Pennsylvania's 1977 grain corn production is expected to be 10 per cent short of last year at 93.2 million bushels according to the Crop Reporting Service. Based on July 1 conditions, this is the result of 1,165,000 acres intended for grain harvest and a yield indicated at 80 bushels.

The commonwealth's winter wheat crop is still expected to total 7.02 million bushels, unchanged from the June estimate and 26 per cent below last year. This would be the state's lowest recorded wheat production.

Production of oats from the 350,000 acres for harvest is estimated at 15.8 million bushels or 14 per cent below last year. The indicated yield of 45 bushels is off five bushels from last year.

Barley production, forecast at near seven million bushels, would be a ten per cent increase over 1976. Acres for harvest are down 2,000 at 145,000 but this is more than offset by a five bushel yield increase to 48 bushels.

Rye production as indicated at 392,000 bushels is eight per cent above last year due to a higher yield of 28 bushels.

Pesticide applicators reminded of deadline

HARRISBURG - Pest control operators and exterminators providing the public with pest control service should be aware of the Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act regulations which are to go into effect in October, 1977.

Donald Lott and Dave Thompson, regional pesticide inspectors from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, say that pest control operators who apply restricted use pesticides will need to become certified as commercial applicators if they intend to continue buying and applying those compounds after the October, 1977, deadline.

Currently, the federal government, through the Environmental Protection Agency(EPA),is developing the list of restricted use pesticides. Although no official list has been published yet, it is expected that the restricted list will combine the more highly toxic compounds, including most pesticides currently labeled with the "Skull and Crossbones", with products having the greatest impact on the environment. These materials would only be available to certified applicators. Safer compounds will be classified as "general-use" pesticides and will be available to the public without restrictions.

Many products, including most fumigants, used in pest control work will be classified for restricted use. Companies using these compounds will need at least one employee certified as a commercial applicator to apply or supervise the application of those restricted products. Most pest control operators become certified in several categories, depending upon their specific job requirements, including Household Pest Control, Wood Destroying Pests, Industrial Weeds Pest Control and Fumigation. Some also need certification in Lawn and Turf Pest Control, Ornamental and Shade Tree Pest Control and Aquatic Pest Control. Other categories are also available if desired.

To become certified, an individual must pass a basic "Core" exam and exams in as many specialized categories as needed. He must also pay an annual $30 license fee and show evidence of financial responsiblity through either a surety bond, liability insurance policy or self-insurance in the amount of $100,000, minimum for property damages and public liability, each separately.

Penn State University has developed a series of training manuals to help individuals prepare for the examination portion of certification. These are available at minimal fees. These study materials may be referred to during testing to assist in answering the questions.

Currently, Department of Agriculture personnel are conducting an extensive state-wide examination program. Local dates and locations can be obtained from the county extension office of the Department of Agriculture's regional office.

Many pest control companies also sale restricted use pesticides across-the-counter. The Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act requires companies retailing these products to be licensed by the state. Companies selling only general use pesticides will need no license.

To become licensed, each retail outlet must submit a $10 license fee with their dealer application to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. No examination is required. The license is renewed on an annual basis. Licensed dealers will limit the sale of restricted use pesticides to only certified applicators and must keep records of their restricted pesticide sales.

Anyone wishing more information about commercial certification or dealer licensing should contact Lott or Thompson at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Region VI Office, Summerdale.

Tractor pulling will highlight the evening entertainment. Wednesday's program will include the dairy show for the afternoon with the horses taking over for the evening.

Horse pulling will be back again with two classes, light and heavy weight. Pulling will begin at 7 p.m. After the horse pulling, the local Quarter Horse Association will have a gymkhana for your participation and entertainment.

Thursday will be Youth Day, with activities for area youth and 4-H'ers. The Youth Olympics will be expanded with more new, fun games. Other 4-H activities include the garden tractor contest, dairy goat show, dog show, rocket display and pretty animal contest. Nationally known, local music man, Deacon Brumfield and his group will perform two shows in the evening hours. Increase storage Capacity by 50%

...at less than half the price per square foot!

It's quite a buildings—our Off-Peak Wide Span We say 'buildings' because that's what it is, two buildings in one

The big, clear-span part is just what you need to store large, tall equipment—combines, 4-wheel drive tractors, hay balers and other super-size farm tools The off-peak side bay gives you up to 50% more storage space to 'garage' smaller implements and vehicles—tillage tools, small tractors, trucks, cars, trailers, boats, the family camper, maybe a snowmobile or two A big, wide sliding track door in the clear-span section lets you move big machinery in and out easily, while the smaller door on the side bay endwall provides easy in/out access for smaller equipment without 'jockeying' the bigger stuff around to do it

If you need a new building why not get the one that gives you double utility, plus more space at less cost The Off-Peak Wide Span from Wickes Buildings—it's the best of both worlds

My Thoughts

And welcome to them

By JOANNE SPAHR
Associate Editor

I never was exactly what you'd call adept. For instance, I got cut from the high school hockey team for constantly tripping over my hockey stick as I ran down the field and for fumbling the ball when I did manage to keep on my feet. And, then there was art class. My teachers were overheard to remark that they'd seen better artwork than mine on refrigerator doors. And, cheerleading - well, that was just too difficult for me, especially since the girls were required to jump up and down and clap at the same time. That took coordination that was a bit more advanced than what I had at my disposal.

But, if I could do nothing else, at least I could sew. To me, sewing came as easily as stumbling over my own feet. And, what I was the most proud of was the fact that nobody knew I made my own wardrobe. Well, they knew it, of course, because I went out of my way to make sure they understood that I did it, but they never could tell by just looking at my work.

My greatest pleasure in life for my whole high school career was walking into class the first day of school wearing my new 4-H ensemble and having one of the girls run up to me and say with snide envy, "You didn't make that did you?"

"Yes," I would beam, while grinning my toothiest grin and pointing out all the advanced features such as the covered buttons, invisible zipper, reversible vest, or top stitched seams.

"Wow, who would have thought you could do that?" she would inevitably quip while walking away and letting me stand there digesting the kind of backhand compliment I'd been used to getting all my life.

But, now things have changed. I haven't sewn since I first went to college five years ago, and my talents have rapidly deteriorated to the point where I'd need a refresher course to make a drawstring bag.

And, now when I walk into a room with a creation in which I may have had a small part, I turn red with embarrassment when someone looks at my pucked seam or crooked hem and says with a snide smile, "you didn't make your outfit did you?"

Oh, well, maybe I can take up tennis.

The outfit Robin Espenshade wore was a three piece suede and wool suit. Susan Howell modeled a dark green qiana kint dress with long sleeves and bow collar. Jean Martin had a four piece ensemble in green, including a skirt, vest, jacket, and blouse. June Grube wore a wool lined jumper and long sleeved blouse. Lois Good modeled a slate green suit consiting of a skirt, vest, and jacket.

Judy Weaver's outfit was a two pice vest and skirt wool outfit in a green plaid. A blue wool skirt and vest with a long sleeved bow blouse was worn by Chris Ebersole. Jeanne Henry modeled a wool gray skirt with a red vest.

Those girls winning top honors on the county level then earned the right to compete at the regional competition at Camp Hill on July 21.

Beginning with participant judging, three or four girls were selected from each circle of 10 to 12 young seamstresses, and these young winners were then judged by professional judges. Those judges were Mrs. Cindy Smith, Mrs. Anna Beth Rotz, and Mrs. Mary Grims.

The eight young ladies chosen to go onto regional competition were: Nina Hoffman, Gettysburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hoffman; Ellyn Tannenbaum, Gettysburg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Donald Tannenbaum; Karen Flickinger, Gettysburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Flickinger; Karen Updyke, Littlestown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Updyke; Anne Meyerhoffer, Taneytown, Md., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clue Meyerhoffer; Beth Meckley, Abbottstown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Meckley; Connie Meckley, Abbottstown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Meckley; Cindy Reinecker, York Springs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanely Reinecker.

On being a farm wife

—And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

Happiness is your very own motorcycle.

Now, while some people prefer those huge, overgrown monsters that blast your ears off, I have become addicted to the small, trail-size putt-putters that a woman can stand back up on the ground after it falls and mashes her foot.

The decision to acquire my own small bike came after spending an afternoon riding around the heifer pasture a few years ago as the passenger on the big farmer's cow-chasing cycle. He zipped past a fence row awash in briar patches. One out-reaching limb grabbed my knee, implanting a thorn which I carry to this day as a reminder to go do my own thing. A few months later, I liberated myself from this back-seat status and invested in a very inexpensive second hand Honda 90, equipped with plastic leg shields. One thorn-in-the-flesh is enough!

Cycles have now become absolute necessities in our farm machinery listing. Fifteen heifers escaping across an alfalfa field can outrun any farmer I know; throw a well-treaded mud bike into the plot and the farmer emerges victorious. Even after-dark chases become challenging. That cycle can be parked, light beaming and motor roaring, forbidding cows to venture beyond the gate, while the rider, now on foot, herds stragglers back into safety.

Want to check the fields two hills back through the hollow? Take your cycle, ride along the fence rows, and check the rabbit population on the way. Husbands in distant corners who are suddenly needed can be quickly reached, too, unless you left the key turned on the last time you rode and the die-hard battery has now died easily.

There are a few small rules to bear in mind. Beware of loose stones; they'll pitch you off balance, you'll land on the hard ground cuddling the cycle on your tummy, and probably burn your shins on the exhaust pipe in the process.

Steer clear of all roads that have recently been oiled or tarred. Unless, of course, you like the "black measles" look, or think the smell of gasoline after removing tar is nature's nicest long-lasting perfume. Either way, your friends will suddenly become very busy not seeing you.

Never, but never, cross creeks slowly. Your motor may suddenly idle down, and unthinkingly you'll shoot a foot out each side to steady the bike. Soggy sneakers tend to slip off the brake pedal.

Finally, hide the key and don't ever lend your bike to your husband. Make him go get his own fixed, instead of beating up yours and leaving you stuck with an empty gas tank.

Now, if I could just learn to do a respectable wheelie...

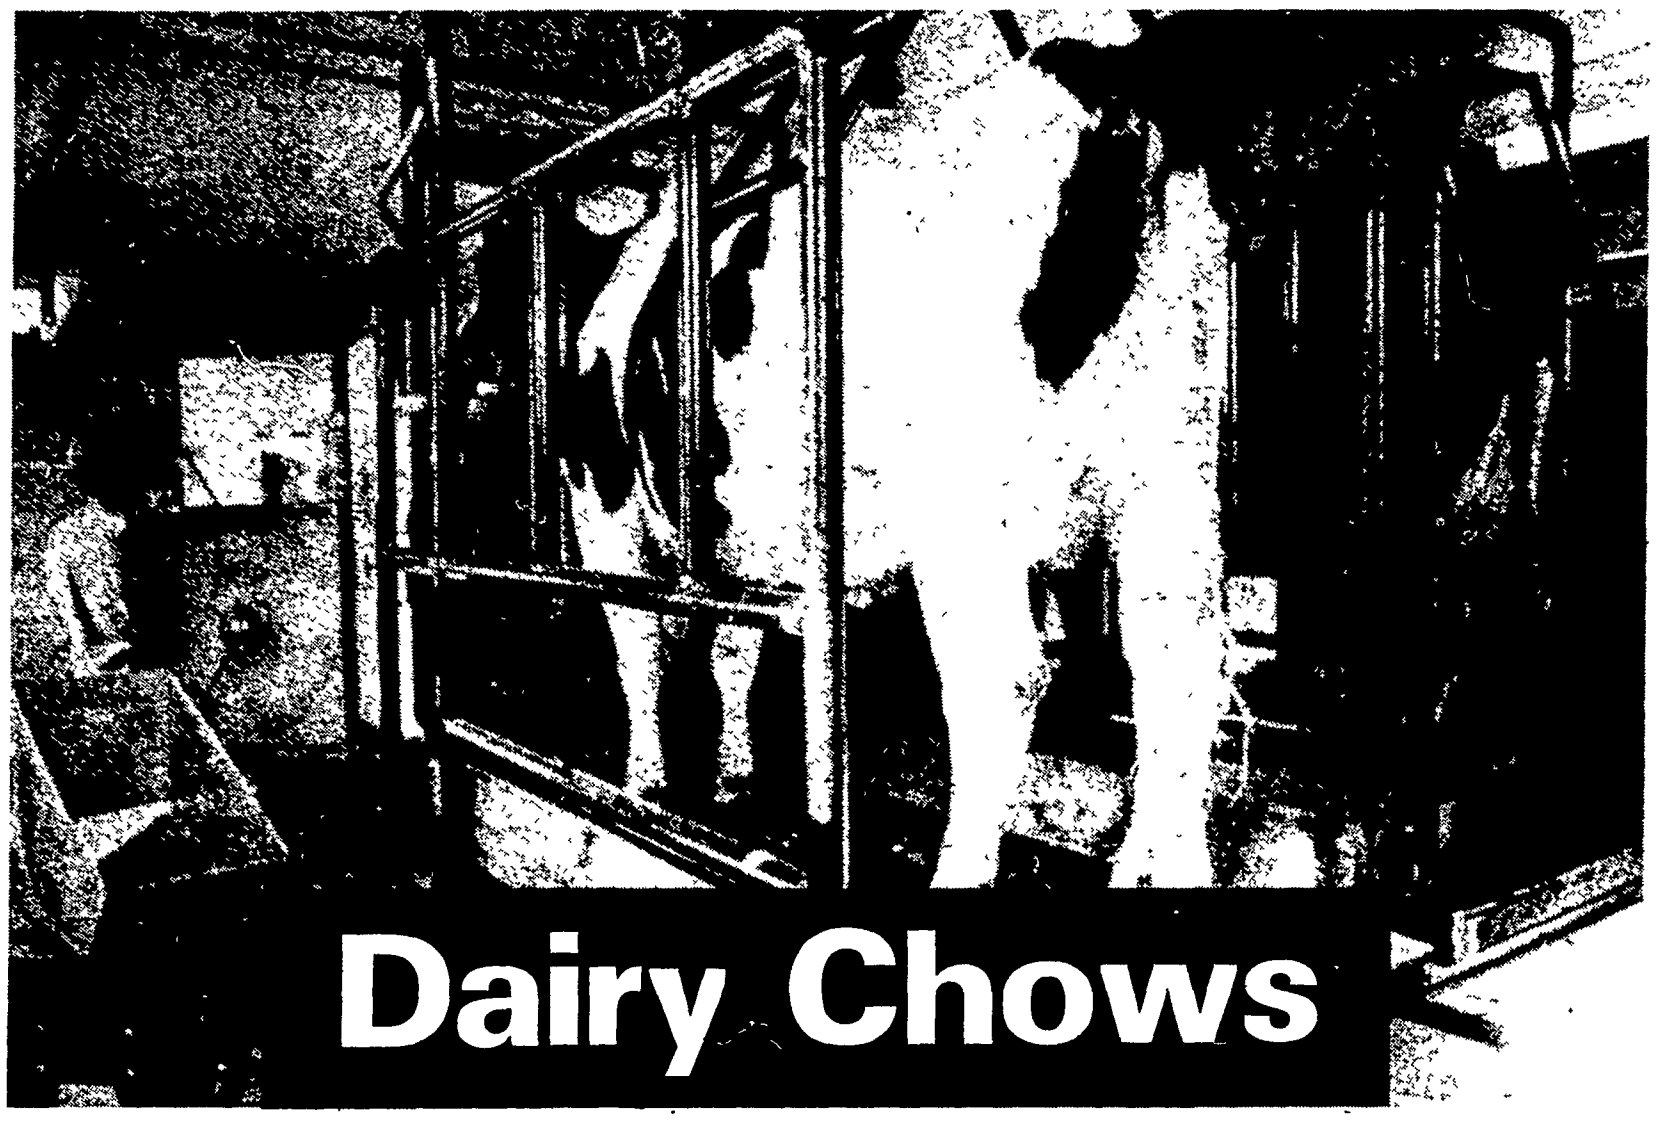
BETTER DAIRY CHOWS COME FROM PURINA RESEARCH



Dairy Chows

PROTEIN? FAT? FIBER? ENERGY?

FEEDSTUFFS HAVE ALWAYS BEEN ANALYZED BY A CHEMICAL PROCESS TO DETERMINE FEEDING VALUE. IN DEVELOPING NEW DAIRY CHOWS FOR HIGH PRODUCING COWS, PURINA DAIRY SCIENTISTS UTILIZE THE ABOVE PICTURED "METABOLISM UNIT" AT PURINA'S GRAY SUMMIT RESEARCH FARM. WATER AND FEED INTAKE IS CAREFULLY MEASURED. URINE AND FECES IS COLLECTED AND ANALYZED. MILK PRODUCTION IS RECORDED AND COMPARED TO FEEDSTUFFS FED.

THIS SPECIALIZED FEEDING OF DAIRY COWS IS HELPING PURINA DAIRY SCIENTISTS DEVELOP NEW AND MORE ACCURATE NUTRITIONAL VALUES FOR THE INGREDIENTS USED IN PURINA DAIRY CHOWS.
